Administration Forces Score Two More Wins

Senate Kills Rigid Supports For Feed Grains, Soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Supporters of the Administration farm proposals continued their victory drive in the Senate today by killing mandatory supports for feed grains and soybeans.

They beat down, 54-33, a substitute amendment offered by Senators Young (R-ND) and Humphrey (D-Minn.) calling for mandatory supports at 75 to 90 per cent of parity on oats, rye, barley, grain sorghums and soybeans.

Sensors Aiken (R-Vt) and Anderson (D-NM) opposed this. They said controls over planting and marketing of these crops would be required if supports were mandatory.

Then the Senate approved 52-39 a proposal by Aiken, Anderson and others to knock from the Senate bill a provision tying mandatory supports for the four small grains to support levels for corn.

It had been sponsored by Young, Humphrey and others who favored extending rigid 90 per cent on basic crops, cotton, wheat, corn, rice and peanuts.

TODAY'S FIRST vote came after more than two hours of angry debate in which campaign pledges of President Eisenhower to farmers and actions by Secretary of Agriculture Benson were sharply criticized.

Sen. Humphrey told the Senate that he does not trust Benson.

The Administration, winner on two major price support issues yesterday, pushed for final Senate action on the controversial farm legislation.

The Senate made these decisions during a session of more than 10 hours yesterday:

1. A 49-44 vote in favor of flexible farm price supports between 82½ and 90 per cent of parity on cotton, wheat, corn, rice and peanuts for next year. This is the same compromise voted by the house in what President Eisenhower termed a satisfactory victory. The President had recommended originally flexible supports ranging from 75 to 90 per cent of parity, a legal standard said to give a farm product a fair price in relation to grower's costs.

2. A 49-43 vote that would give Secretary of Agriculture Benson authority to continue price supports on such dairy products as butter and cheese at the reduced level of 75 per cent of parity. This was below the 80 per cent level effective Sept. 1, voted by the House and the 85 per cent recommended 8-7 by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

More than a score of proposed amendments still were pending as the Senate was recalled to continue work on the big bill today but only one was regarded as a major controversy—an administration-opposed move to require that prices of oats, rye, barley and grain sorghums be supported near the level accorded corn.

ANY SENATE decisions are still subject to a compromise-seeking conference with the House.

One big potential trouble spot for the conferees was avoided by the Senate vote on the major issue (Continued on Page Two)

McCarthy Foe OKs Trimming Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today he would not object to discarding some accusations against Sen. McCarthy so long as the Senate gets a chance to vote on whether the Wisconsin Republican has shown "disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government."

A six-member Senate committee decided yesterday to give McCarthy the right to cross-examine witnesses in public hearings to begin Aug. 30 on accusations that his conduct has tended to bring the Senate into disrepute and merits formal censure.

Members said the special group, headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), is aiming at a 10-day hearing and a mid-September report. The Senate might reconvene Oct. 1 to act on such a report.

Watkins said the group, composed of three Republicans and three Democrats, hopes to conduct its hearings much as a court trial, with evidence limited to that which the committee holds is relevant and most hearsay testimony barred.

FULBRIGHT, who filed 6 of the 46 overlapping charges against McCarthy, said in an interview he doesn't want to "bog the committee down" in lengthy hearings.

The accusations, made by Fulbright and Senators Flanders (R-Vt) and Morse (Ind-Ore) during Senate debate on Flanders' move to censure McCarthy, cover a wide range of conduct allegedly unbecoming in a senator. They include a number dealing with the Wisconsin senator's controversial Red-hunting methods.

Fulbright said he would be satisfied if some of them were consolidated, and he added:

"I think the issue is whether McCarthy has shown irresponsibility and heedlessness of established custom in his conduct. The committee should concentrate on taking evidence of his disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government and the Senate should vote on that issue."

Although some committee members have indicated they will vote against considering it, Fulbright said he is unwilling to drop a charge that McCarthy did not give "comparable value" for a $10,000 fee he received from Lustron Corp. for writing a housing pamphlet.

Whether the special committee would delve into the Lustron case or any other specific charge appeared to depend on the recommendations of a corps of three lawyer researchers.

Committee members said the lawyers, to be named by Watkins with daily pay at the rate of $11,800 a year, will be asked to sift the charges to find which were substantial and grounds for censure if proved.

Ohioans' Vote On Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here is how Sen. Burke (D-Ohio) and Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) voted yesterday on various amendments to the farm bill.

On amendment by Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), to allow continuance of dairy price supports at present levels, adopted 49-43: Bricker for, Burke against.

On amendment by Sen. Aiken, fixing price supports to provide for 82½ to 90 per cent parity after it had been revised from 80 to 90 per cent, adopted 49-44: Bricker for, Burke against.

On amendment by Sen. Schoepel (R-Kan) to permit price floors of 82½ to 90 per cent, adopted 49-44: Bricker for, Burke against.

On amendment by Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) to order price supports at 90 to 100 per cent of parity on cotton, wheat, corn, peanuts and rice, defeated, 81-12: Bricker against, Burke against.

On amendment by Sen. Thye (R-Minn) to substitute an 80 per cent parity price support on dairy products for the 75 per cent proposed by Sen. Aiken, rejected, 44-48: Burke for, Bricker against.

Atomic Power Outlook Hailed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ancher Nelsen, Rural Electrification Administration chief, says atomic power holds promising possibilities, but many complex technical and economic problems will have to be solved before nuclear power generation will be feasible. Nelsen spoke yesterday to the quarterly meeting of the Ohio Statewide Assn., an organization of rural electrification cooperatives.

Demo Session Set

COLUMBUS (AP)—Eugene H. Hanhart, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, said today the Democratic state convention will be held here Sept. 28. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions are scheduled for the one-day program. The keynote speaker will be announced later, Hanhart said.

Unlucky Family Stranded Here; Forced To Sleep In Their Car

A young West Virginia couple, stranded, jobless and penniless in Circleville with an eight-month old baby, has yet to find the silver lining behind bad luck.

The family, sleeping in a disabled car for four days, has been taken in temporarily by a S. Court St. family.

The story, riddled with disappointment and job layoffs, became known when several persons noticed the car, which was parked in an E. Main St. lot, and volunteered help.

Jerry Schoolcraft, 28 met his now 18-year old wife Shirley in Charleston, W. Va., while he was with the Merchant Marine. That was 1952.

BECAUSE SHIRLEY was under age, the couple went to Detroit, Mich., to get her father's consent for marriage. They were married there July 3, 1952.

Schoolcraft got out of the Merchant Marine and obtained a job as a truck driver in Detroit. But he was soon laid off.

The couple then went to Youngstown where he again got a truck driver job. But this was only a replacement job for a hospitalized driver. And it ended seven months later when the original driver came back to work.

Although Schoolcraft looked around for more work, he "just could not seem to find anything." Making their problem more complicated, Mrs. Schoolcraft gave birth to Paul Jerry last December.

Then their luck seemed to change. A letter from Schoolcraft's brother in Seattle, Wash., came with a promise of a good construction job there.

So the Schoolcrafts drove to Seattle. But the unlucky cloud which has followed them came overhead again. Schoolcraft's brother suddenly left town.

Virtually broke, the wandering couple headed back. Along the way the car began acting up, but made it back to Ohio. Schoolcraft was told there might be work for him at the atomic plant in Waverly.

Just outside of Circleville, the Schoolcraft car broke down for good. However, he was able to get it into the lot next to the Circleville American Legion Home.

He did manage to get to Waverly later, but was told there were no jobs open for him. Monday, some of the people who befriended them, gave the Schoolcrafts money so that he could get to Columbus to look for work there.

Tuesday morning, Schoolcraft told The Herald he had a partial promise of a job there. "But nothing definite." The bad luck lingers.

Knowland To Block Delay On Atom Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) said today the Senate will stay in session—no matter how long it takes—to approve a compromise version of President Eisenhower's new atomic energy blueprint.

The two-week senate debate required before the bill was passed originally was the major factor in wrecking congressional leaders' hopes of adjourning July 31. They are aiming now for this Saturday.

The House passed by voice vote late yesterday a compromise version of the bill designed to spur the entrance of private industry into the field of peaceful atomic power and to permit sharing of such nuclear secrets with U. S. allies.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, told newsmen he will not offer any adjournment-recess resolution until after the measure, worked out by a Senate-House conference committee, is passed.

"THE BILL is going to be passed," he said. "The Senate has voted 2-1 in favor of it and the conference report isn't going to be rejected. I don't know how much talk there will be on it. But we are going to stay here until it is passed."

Opponents who argue that some provisions of the bill would pave the way for monopoly in the atomic power field have said they regard as good the chances that the Senate will vote to send the measure back once again to a Senate-House conference. The idea would be to revise provisions to which they object.

The House took little time yesterday in disposing of the bill, which it originally passed in a 17-hour session on July 30-31 while the Senate was in the midst of a 13-day talkfest.

The major controversy row centers on a provision dealing with patents on privately financed civilian developments in atomic energy. The bill provides for the issuance of exclusive patents, but requires that preference in issuing licenses for atomic manufacturing projects during the first five years be given to concerns that agree to share patents.

Killer Strolls Off With Wife

CHICAGO (AP)—Sheriff's officers said a Washington Park stablehand stabbed a cab driver to death in the race track parking lot last night and then went for a stroll with the victim's wife.

Dead is Harry R. Andrews.

Captain Jack Johnson of the County sheriff's police said Jack Miller, 28-year-old stablehand, stabbed Andrews nine times with a three-inch-blade pocket knife as Andrews' wife, Mary, 41, watched. Johnson described Miller as being friendly with Mrs. Andrews. Johnson said Miller admitted the stabbing.

Embryo Airmen Musn't Fly Yet

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Sgt. Marvin T. Hedrick of the Air Force recruiting service, admitted yesterday he can't figure this one out.

He had a group of 20 lads from this area who had enlisted in the Air Force, so he thought it would be a good idea to have them flown in a group to the Sampson Air Force Base at Geneva, N. Y.

Arrangements were made to have the boys taken to Cincinnati where they were to board a plane to start for their tour of duty in "the wild blue yonder." Photographers were to have taken pictures of the mass departure.

Then, Sgt. Hedrick reported, he had to call it all off.

The parents of some of the boys objected to their flying to the New York base.

Police Say Prowler Cases Indicate He Lives Nearby

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said Tuesday his department is "just about convinced" that a prowler eluding capture in a Southern section is a resident of that particular neighborhood.

He made the disclosure in commenting on the latest of a series of prowler incidents which occurred Sunday night. Merriman said he was unaware of the latest incident until late Monday when The Herald, learning of it from residents of the neighborhood, asked him for details.

Mrs. W. D. Purdin had related meanwhile how an intruder ran from the front porch of the Purdin residence, at the northwest corner of S. Pickaway and Union streets about 9:45 p. m. Sunday. He was aided in making his escape down a nearby alley by the fact that the street light at the intersection was out.

Mrs. Purdin, along with other residents of the section, had reported the light out, but a spokesman for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. said Monday no such report was relayed to the utility by the police department.

The corner light was still out Monday night.

MR. AND MRS. Purdin were entertaining friends Sunday evening when Mrs. Purdin's attention was attracted to a man standing on the porch. The porch light at the time was not turned on, and only the stranger's right shoulder and arm were visible through the latched screen door.

The street intersection was cloaked in darkness and Sunday night's intermittent rainfall had paused only a short time before Purdin, a moment before the man was noticed on the porch, had gone toward the kitchen of the residence.

Mrs. Purdin said she at first thought the newcomer to be a friend of their son but received no reply when she asked:

"Who is it? What do you want?"

Becoming alarmed, Mrs. Purdin called out to her husband and the intruder meanwhile ran from the porch, turning at a sharp angle toward the alley leading south from Union St., between S. Pickaway and Court. In the reflection of lights from the home, the man was seen for a fleeting second running into the alley. He was pursued down the alley by Purdin but quickly disappeared.

The prowler was described as a man of medium build and wore a light-colored shirt with short sleeves.

THE LATEST incident occurred less than a block from the home of Mrs. Jone Reichelderfer, of 131 E. Union St., who was awakened by a prowler in her home on the night of July 27. She said the man wore a short-sleeved sport shirt. Mrs. Purdin quoted police officers called to her home Sunday night as saying her description of the man "is the same as the man we've been looking for."

The rain had let up only a short time before the incident, and the intruder's clothing had dripped considerable water on the Purdin porch, alongside the front door. In fleeing across the front yard, he left footprints clearly marked in the rain-soggy soil. Purdin said one or two of the well-defined prints showed the man was wearing overshoes or possibly boots.

It was the latest in a long series of "prowler" and "peeping Tom" cases reported over the past year or two in an area apparently bounded by E. Mill, Court and E. Franklin streets. Residents of that section of the city said the number of incidents appears to be increasing in recent months.

Police officers have expressed belief privately several times that the person responsible is a resident of the locality. Chief Merriman's comment on this point was the first public reference to it.

Tending to throw an extra element of mystery into the prowler hunt, however, were reliable descriptions of the intruder involved in the most recent cases. Important details of the latest descriptions do not tally with those listed in several similar scares over the past year or more.

Thursday Set For Citywide Bargain Spree

New Building Gains, Industrial Growth Top Big Outlook

Rising steadily on the crest of increased building activity and gradual industrial expansion, Circleville's trade volume will be given another spur next Thursday by the annual "Dollar Day" bargains.

While "Dollar Day" is always considered a booster shot for local business, trade observers pointed out it should provide a specially strong stimulus this year. The organized citywide bargain-day program comes this year at a time when business is already showing strong signs toward record high levels.

In line with the traditional custom for this particular event, Mayor Bob Hedges announced that parking will be free throughout the city Thursday. Parking meters can be legally ignored on that day in an effort to facilitate the flow of shoppers in and out of the downtown area.

"Dollar Day" brings out each merchant's most attractive displays, with a special bargain policy in effect for the annual trade celebration. Many businessmen adjust their prices for that day with a particular eye for new customers, and extra good purchases for those already on the regular list.

"I MAY not make much money on Dollar Day this year," a downtown store owner said, "but I figure on making a lot of new customers. And if I'm able to give them a bargain or two next Thursday, I know they'll be back later as regulars."

"Nobody argues that point. Everybody knows a satisfied customer means good business over a period of time."

Solid optimism in local trade circles, which enabled the city trade chart to continue its upward trend through the false "recession" of several months ago, is based on several factors. And prominent among these are obvious gains traced to increased building and industrial growth.

Latest high point in the long-time building program will come next Sunday when "The House of Enchantment", Circleville's first all-gas model home, is opened in the Markley Addition. The public will be admitted free to view a modern home filled with the finest of living conveniences.

On the industrial side of the cheering outlook, the Du Pont Co. has announced its multi-million dollar plant south of the city is now in operation. Its stimulating effect on local trade began making itself felt early in the plant construction period, adding to similar gains spurred by other firms already here.

"We've had a lot of Dollar Days," a spokesman for Circleville Chamber of Commerce said, "but I don't recall one that came along when things were looking as good as they are now."

"SALES TAX receipts and other reliable trade barometers put the good news in plain black and white. But our good business prospects go beyond that.

Four Break Jail In Eastern Ohio

STUEBENVILLE (AP)—Four prisoners, one of them described as dangerous, sawed a hole through their cell block today and escaped from the Jefferson County Jail.

Sheriff Clarence E. Eberts listed them as:

Roy Mossberg, 29, of McKeesport, Pa., awaiting trial for armed robbery; John Manos, 19, of Smithfield, Ohio, charged with parole violation; Mike Roshak, 40, of Tiltonville, Ohio, assault and battery, and William Robinson, 30, of Steubenville, breaking and entering.

Sheriff Eberts said he considered Mossberg dangerous.

Youth Confesses Killing 10 Men

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Police are holding a 19-year-old, Jose Lazaro Gonzales, who has admitted killing at least 10 men.

Gonzales said robbery usually was his motive. The biggest haul he could remember was $2.36, the smallest 8 cents.

Police said the youth was one of a band of professional killers. Mexico has no death penalty.

Senate Kills Rigid Supports For Feed Grains, Soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP)—Supporters of the Administration farm proposals continued their victory drive in the Senate today by killing mandatory supports for feed grains and soybeans.

They beat down, 54-33, a substitute amendment offered by Senators Young (R-ND) and Humphrey (D-Minn) calling for mandatory supports at 75 to 90 per cent of parity on oats, rye, barley, grain sorghums and soybeans.

2. A 49-43 vote that would give Secretary of Agriculture Benson authority to continue price supports on such dairy products as butter and cheese at the reduced level of 75 per cent of parity. This was below the 80 per cent level effective Sept. 1, voted by the House and the 85 per cent recommended 8-7 by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

More than a score of proposed amendments still were pending as the Senate was recalled to continue work on the big bill today but only one was regarded as a major controversy—an administration-opposed move to require that prices of oats, rye, barley and grain sorghums be supported near the level accorded corn.

ANY SENATE decisions are still subject to a compromise-seeking conference with the House.

McCarthy Foe OKs Trimming Charges

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today he would not object to discarding some accusations against Sen. McCarthy so long as the Senate gets a chance to vote on whether the Wisconsin Republican has shown "disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government."

A six-member Senate committee decided yesterday to give McCarthy the right to cross-examine witnesses in public hearings to begin Aug. 30 on accusations that his conduct has tended to bring the Senate into disrepute and merits formal censure.

Members said the special group, headed by Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), is aiming at a 10-day hearing and a mid-September report. The Senate might reconvene Oct. 1 to act on such a report.

Watkins said the group, composed of three Republicans and three Democrats, hopes to conduct its hearings much as a court trial, with evidence limited to that which the committee holds is relevant and most hearsay testimony barred.

FULBRIGHT, who filed 6 of the 46 overlapping charges against McCarthy, said in an interview he doesn't want to "bog the committee down" in lengthy hearings.

The accusations, made by Fulbright and Senators Flanders (R-Vt) and Morse (Ind-Ore) during Senate debate on Flanders' move to censure McCarthy, cover a wide range of conduct allegedly unbecoming in a senator. They include a number dealing with the Wisconsin senator's controversial Red-hunting methods.

Fulbright said he would be satisfied if some of them were consolidated, and he added:

"I think the issue is whether McCarthy has shown irresponsibility and heedlessness of established custom in his conduct. The committee should concentrate on taking evidence of his disregard for the whole orderly conduct of government and the Senate should vote on that issue."

Although some committee members have indicated they will vote against considering it, Fulbright said he is unwilling to drop a charge that McCarthy did not give "comparable value" for a $10,000 fee he received from Lustron Corp. for writing a housing pamphlet.

Whether the special committee would delve into the Lustron case or any other specific charge appeared to depend on the recommendations of a corps of three lawyer researchers.

Committee members said the lawyers, to be named by Watkins with daily pay at the rate of $11,800 a year, will be asked to sift the charges to find which were substantial and grounds for censure if proved.

States' Share Of Airport Money Listed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced today figures showing each state's share in a 15-million dollar appropriation approved by Senate and House for federal aid for airports.

The money is included in a supplemental appropriation bill now before a Senate-House conference committee. But since both houses have approved the airport aid fund, the item is not at issue and CAA is making plans for apportionment of the money. Ohio's share is $503,700.

In addition, the bill contains five million for high priority airport improvement projects but this is not subject to state apportionment, the CAA said. The appropriations will be for year ending next June 30.

The formula for distribution of the 15 million to states is established by law on the basis of area and population. The federal funds are to be matched by local money. CAA said applications for airport improvement projects will be submitted by sponsors to district CAA engineers.

The specific projects are not expected to be decided until late September, CAA said.

Series To Outline Meaning Of Huge Church Assembly

On Sunday, the most widely representative Christian gathering ever held on the American continent begins in Evanston, Ill. It is the Assembly of the World Council of Churches, where members of 161 denominations meet to find out whether they can heal some of the centuries-old divisions of Christianity.

In this age of deepening interest in religion, Americans will be watching this event with tremendous interest. To help them understand what is at stake in Evanston, George Cornell, Associated Press writer on religion who will cover the sessions, has written four articles which examine in detail the significance of the Assembly, the theological questions the delegates will discuss, their position on representatives from Communist countries, and the underlying aim of the Assembly—the effort to give Christianity more muscle by obtaining more unified action.

Minimum Phone Standards Set Up

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state utilities commission has adopted a set of minimum service standards by which Ohio can measure the adequacy of telephone service. Some of the standards become effective Jan. 1, 1955, the rest by July 1, 1956. The more than 175 telephone companies in the state will be evaluated by the new criteria which will enable the commission to handle service complaints more easily.

Knowland To Block Delay On Atom Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) said today the Senate will stay in session—no matter how long it takes—to approve a compromise version of President Eisenhower's new atomic energy blueprint.

The two-week senate debate required before the bill was passed originally was the major factor in wrecking congressional leaders' hopes of adjourning July 31. They are aiming now for this Saturday.

The House passed by voice vote late yesterday a compromise version of the bill designed to spur the entrance of private industry into the field of peaceful atomic power and to permit sharing of such nuclear secrets with U. S. allies.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, told newsmen he will not offer any adjournment-recess resolution until after the measure, worked out by a Senate-House conference committee, is passed.

"THE BILL is going to be passed," he said. "The Senate has voted 2-1 in favor of it and the conference report isn't going to be rejected. I don't know how much talk there will be on it. But we are going to stay here until it is passed."

Opponents who argue that some provisions of the bill would pave the way for monopoly in the atomic power field have said they regard as good the chances that the Senate will vote to send the measure back once again to a Senate-House conference. The idea would be to revise provisions to which they object.

The House took little time yesterday in disposing of the bill, which it originally passed in a 17-hour session on July 30-31 while the Senate was in the midst of a 13-day talkfest.

The major controversy now centers on a provision dealing with patents on privately financed civilian developments in atomic energy. The bill provides for the issuance of exclusive patents, but requires that preference in issuing licenses for atomic manufacturing projects during the first five years be given to concerns that agree to share patents.

Johnson described Miller as being friendly with Mrs. Andrews. Johnson said Miller admitted the stabbing.

Embryo Airmen Mustn't Fly Yet

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Sgt. Marvin T. Hedrick of the Air Force recruiting service, admitted yesterday he can't figure this one out.

He had a group of 20 lads from this area who had enlisted in the Air Force, so he thought it would be a good idea to have them flown in a group to the Sampson Air Force Base at Geneva, N. Y.

Arrangements were made to have the boys taken to Cincinnati where they were to board a plane to start for their tour of duty in "the wild blue yonder." Photographers were to have taken pictures of the mass departure.

Then, Sgt. Hedrick reported, he had to call it all off.

The parents of some of the boys objected to their flying to the New York base.

Police Say Prowler Cases Indicate He Lives Nearby

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said Tuesday his department is "just about convinced" that a prowler eluding capture in a South end section is a resident of that particular neighborhood.

The street intersection was cloaked in darkness and Sunday night's intermittent rainfall had paused only a short time before, Purdin, a moment before the man was noticed on the porch, had gone toward the kitchen of the residence.

Mrs. Purdin said she at first thought the newcomer to be a friend of their son but received no reply when she asked:

"Who is it? What do you want?"

Becoming alarmed, Mrs. Purdin called out to her husband and the intruder meanwhile ran from the porch, turning at a sharp angle toward the alley leading south from Union St., between S. Pickaway and Court. In the reflection of lights from the home, the man was seen for a fleeting second running into the alley. He was pursued down the alley by Purdin but quickly disappeared.

The prowler was described as a man of medium build and wore a light-colored shirt with short sleeves.

THE LATEST incident occurred less than a block from the home of Mrs. Jone Reichelderfer, of 131 E. Union St., who was awakened by a prowler in her home on the night of July 27. She said the man wore a short-sleeved sport shirt.

Mrs. Purdin quoted police officers called to her home Sunday night as saying her description of the man "is the same as the man we've been looking for."

Thursday Set For Citywide Bargain Spree

New Building Gains, Industrial Growth Top Big Outlook

Rising steadily on the crest of increased building activity and gradual industrial expansion, Circleville's trade volume will be given another spur next Thursday by the annual "Dollar Day" bargains.

While "Dollar Day" is always considered a booster shot for local business, trade observers pointed out it should provide a specially strong stimulus this year. The organized citywide bargain-day program comes this year at a time when business is already showing strong signs toward record high levels.

In line with the traditional custom for this particular event, Mayor Bob Hedges announced that parking will be free throughout the city Thursday. Parking meters can be legally ignored on that day in an effort to facilitate the flow of shoppers in and out of the downtown area.

"Dollar Day" brings out each merchant's most attractive displays, with a special bargain policy in effect for the annual trade celebration. Many businessmen adjust their prices for that day with a particular eye for new customers, and extra good purchases for those already on the regular list.

"I MAY not make much money on Dollar Day this year," a downtown store owner said, "but I figure on making a lot of new customers. And if I'm able to give them a bargain or two next Thursday, I know they'll be back later as regulars."

"Nobody argues that point. Everybody knows a satisfied customer means good business over a period of time."

Solid optimism in local trade circles, which enabled the city trade chart to continue its upward trend through the false "recession" of several months ago, is based on several factors. And prominent among these are obvious gains traced to increased building and industrial growth.

Latest high point in the long-time building program will come next Sunday when "The House of Enchantment", Circleville's first all-gas model home, is opened in the Markley Addition. The public will be admitted free to view a modern home filled with the finest of living conveniences.

On the industrial side of the cheering outlook, the Du Pont Co. has announced its multi-million dollar plant south of the city is now in operation. Its stimulating effect on local trade began making itself felt early in the plant construction period, adding to similar gains spurred by other firms already here.

"We've had a lot of Dollar Days," a spokesman for Circleville Chamber of Commerce said, "but I don't recall one that came along when things were looking as good as they are now."

"SALES TAX receipts and other reliable trade barometers put the good news in plain black and white. But our good business prospects go beyond that."

Four Break Jail In Eastern Ohio

STUEBENVILLE (AP)—Four prisoners, one of them described as dangerous, sawed a hole through their cell block today and escaped from the Jefferson County jail.

Sheriff Clarence E. Eberts listed them as:

Roy Mossberg, 29, of McKeesport, Pa., awaiting trial for armed robbery; John Manos, 19, of Smithfield, Ohio, charged with parole violation; Mike Roshak, 40, of Tiltonsville, Ohio, assault and battery, and William Robinson, 30, of Steubenville, breaking and entering.

Sheriff Eberts said he considered Mossberg dangerous.

Youth Confesses Killing 10 Men

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Police are holding a 19-year-old, Jose Lazaro Gonzales, who has admitted killing at least 10 men.

Gonzales said robbery usually was his motive. The biggest haul he could remember was $2.56, the smallest 8 cents.

Police said the youth was one of a band of professional killers. Mexico has no death penalty.

sue—rigid vs. flexible price supports.

Since World War II years, prices of six "basic" crops have been supported at 90 per cent of parity. Over Aiken's objections, the Agriculture Committee had urged an extension. Tobacco will continue to be supported at that level next year, but the administration urged a system of flexible props for the other five.

Aiken, administration floor manager for the bill, had been plugging for an 80-90 per cent range. Since the Senate okayed the same 82½-90 per cent range the House passed earlier, this will not be at issue in the conference.

Sen. Young (R-ND), spokesman for a bipartisan group of senators which fought vainly for continued rigid price supports, planned one last-ditch fight.

He and senators Mundt (R-SD), Russell (D-Ga.), and Eastland (D-Miss) offered a new amendment which Young said would require 90 per cent supports on the five basic crops "if the flexible supports fail to get rid of our surpluses and farmers vote for acreage and marketing controls."

Short Circuits Cause Of Fire On E. Main St.

A call at 7:20 a. m. Tuesday sent city firemen to a blaze at the Mr. and Mrs. Arledge home, 698 E. Main St.

The fire, which was actually discovered by 5½-year-old Terry Lee Arledge, was caused by the shorting of wires in the attic and basement, according to Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

Firemen had to wear gas masks to battle the great amount of smoke. They checked the blaze within an hour.

There was no immediate estimate on the amount of damage.

CHIEF WISE said he thought a great deal of re-wiring would have to be done. He noted that there were short circuits both upstairs and down.

Mrs. Arledge said she was in the basement washing clothes when her son said he heard a funny noise in the attic. Mrs. Arledge said she then heard the noise too, which sounded like an alarm clock going off.

Suddenly, smoke began to billow from underneath the stairway where the fuse box was, she added. All the lights in the house began to dim as if there were a power failure, she noted.

Mrs. Arledge commended the efficient work of the firemen.

AFL Takes Dim View Of Outlook

NEW YORK (AP)—The AFL Executive council, rejecting the view that the nation's economy has been stabilized, says, "there is every indication of continued drift in the economic doldrums for the next few months."

The council urges a program of higher wages and increased purchasing power as the "common goal of labor, industry and government."

The statement was issued at the opening session of the council's quarterly meeting yesterday.

Thug Hits Victim With Own Pistol

DAYTON (AP)—A silent, unmasked bandit robbed a cafe owner of $4,500 here early this morning, then slugged the victim with his own gun.

Thomas J. Smith, 50, told police the man popped out of the cafe's rear doorway when he drove up at 4:50 a. m. to prepare for his 6 p. m. opening. The bandit yanked the car door open and, revolver in hand, motioned the cafe owner out and face down on the ground.

He helped himself to Smith's money box containing funds for cashing pay roll checks, then he pulled the tavern owner's .38 caliber revolver from its resting place on the front seat of the car, struck him on the head and ran. Smith suffered a slight head cut.

Senator Makes Hole Long Way

DAYTON (AP)—Nevada state Sen. Ken Johnson of Carson City, defending vacation-flight champion in the National Left Handers' Golf Tournament, tied for his division's medal with a 75 yesterday, but only after a long 9th hole.

A good belt from the No. 9 tee put him in sight of the green. "What club would you suggest now?" he asked his caddy.

"You can punch it in with a No. 8 iron, Senator. I've seen worse golfers than you do it."

The senator wasn't convinced, but he let fly and wound up 20 yards short of the green. He looked sternly at the caddy. "Wrong club?"

"No, Senator, wrong green. You were aiming at No. 18."

NEW YORK (U.S.A.)—The AFL Executive council, rejecting the view that the nation's economy has been stabilized, says, "there is every indication of continued drift in the economic doldrums for the next few months."

The council urges a program of higher wages and increased purchasing power as the "common goal of labor, industry and government."

The statement was issued at the opening session of the council's quarterly meeting yesterday.

Thug Hits Victim With Own Pistol

DAYTON (U.S.A.)—A silent, unmasked bandit robbed a cafe owner of $4,500 here early this morning, then slugged the victim with his own gun.

Thomas J. Smith, 50, told police the man popped out of the cafe's rear doorway when he drove up at 4:50 a. m. to prepare for his 6 p. m. opening. The bandit yanked the car door open and, revolver in hand, motioned the cafe owner out and face down on the ground.

He helped himself to Smith's money box containing funds for cashing pay roll checks, then he pulled the tavern owner's .38 caliber revolver from its resting place on the front seat of the car, struck him on the head and ran. Smith suffered a slight head cut.

Ohio Unemployed Roster Longer

COLUMBUS (U.S.A.)—An increase of 586 in newly unemployed for the week ending Aug. 7 compared to the previous week was reported by the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation today.

The bureau listed totals for the week ending Aug. 7 as 13,931 compared to 13,345 for the week ending July 31.

For claimants unemployed one week or more, the total for the week ending Aug. 7 was listed at 92,656 compared to 93,483 for the previous week. These totals do not include those who have received the maximum compensation payments and still may be unemployed.

Senator Makes Hole Long Way

DAYTON (U.S.A.)—Nevada state Sen. Ken Johnson of Carson City, defending vacation-flight champion in the National Left Handers' Golf Tournament, tied for his division's medal with a 75 yesterday, but only after a long 9th hole.

A good belt from the No. 9 tee put him in sight of the green. "What club would you suggest now?" he asked his caddy.

"You can punch it in with a No. 8 iron, Senator, I've seen worse golfers than you do it."

The senator wasn't convinced, but he let fly and wound up 20 yards short of the green. He looked sternly at the caddy. "Wrong club?"

"No, Senator, wrong green. You were aiming at No. 18."

Polio Test Girl Contracts Disease

COLUMBUS (U.S.A.)—Dr. Ralph Dwork, acting state health director, says a Richland County girl who took part in the test of the new Salk polio vaccine is believed to have polio.

It is not known whether the girl was injected with the vaccine or with an innocuous control liquid. Three students in Montgomery County who took part in the test have also contracted polio, while another in the same age group—6 to 9—who did not participate also has the disease.

Mother Who Left Baby Sentenced

CLEVELAND (U.S.A.)—A 25-year-old former strip tease dancer who left her dead baby in a hotel room has been sentenced to a five months term in the Warrensville Workhouse.

The mother, Margaret C. Bain, pleaded guilty yesterday to a child abandonment charge and Municipal Judge Edward J. Feighan passed sentence.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

It won't be long until school starts and, no doubt, the football squad and the High School Band have already been practicing for the coming season. We wonder if today's High School football players appreciate how nice they have it?

Forty or fifty years ago, there was very little glamour in the game—the boys played because they liked to play football. In the first place the Board of Education and the faculty would have nothing to do with the team, either as sponsors or in sanctioning football as a legitimate activity of the school. And, furthermore, in no way was participation in the game by any student to interfere to the least degree with regular classes or study periods.

Any infraction of the rule could mean expulsion. All games were played on Saturdays and were out of town—we had no money to pay to bring teams here. There were no bands, no cheerleaders, no bleachers—we didn't need them, for there were no spectators.

Each player paid for his own uniform, such as it was; helped to buy the ball, and if there happened to be a home game, chipped in to pay the expenses of the visitors as well as the rental of the playing field.

For color—Joseph's Coat could not compare with an Everts' football squad. Old cast-off football gear, baseball suits, overalls and even patched up everyday clothes made up the playing togs. For shoes—rubber-soled sneakers were generally worn, though some sported regular shoes fitted with homemade leather cleats nailed to the soles.

It has happened—even baseball shoes, spikes and all, were worn until a referee spied them and stopped the game until the spikes were removed or the player finished the game in his wool socks. For headgear, most of the players wore woolen stocking caps—the best protection for the least money.

One year—someone gave the team a leather helmet to be worn by the one in the backfield who was to carry the ball. We soon found out that this was a complete give-away, so to fool the opposing team, the quarterback would mix up his plays and hand the ball to one of the backs without the helmet.

Some of the boys wore shin-guards and a few had the big rubber nose-guards. Anyone remember how those gimmicks could knock your teeth out? We had no regular coach. For playing strategy, our offensive signals merely informed the rest of the team—who was to carry the ball and which way he was bound.

We had but one plan of defense—keep your eye on the ball and nail the one who had it. In those days passing the ball was not permitted—you either tucked it under your arm and ran, or kicked it.

The squad was usually comprised of 15 players, each of which must know the fundamentals and a few of the niceties of two of the playing positions. In addition some must know the duties of a linesman, timekeeper, water boy and even how to handle a litter in case someone was knocked out so that he could not leave the field under his own steam.

The first team was made up of the 11 toughest and hardest of the squad, who could stand the gaff of a full game and were not drawn from play unless knocked cold. When it was necessary to substitute, as many as three or four shifts of position were made to most effectively use the new man coming in the game.

John Foll, our beloved janitor of Everts, saw that we had a nice warm place in which to dress—in his boiler room or the coal bin, adjoining. We usually practiced on the Glass Factory commons or on the west side of the old Everts building.

When we came in from practice—if it was cold—old John would have a tub of warm water ready for us so that we might sponge off, but in ordinary weather, our show-

Benson Assails High Dairy Props

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson has declared proposals in Congress to boost dairy price supports would cost the Treasury 100 million dollars a year, and put speculators in a position to "cash in on windfall profits" that might "amount to several million dollars."

Benson made these comments at a news conference with reference to the farm bill now before the Senate. One issue raised in the Senate is whether to boost dairy supports from the present 75 per cent of parity to 85 per cent, effective Sept. 1, for a period ending next April 1.

Convict-Writer Suicide Victim

BALTIMORE (AP)—Edwin J. Becker, 38, author, newspaperman and bad check artist, was buried yesterday. Becker, who once served time in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, among other places, killed himself last Friday. He gained national prominence with short stories and a book published while serving a term in the New Jersey Penitentiary on a forgery conviction.

Funds For Ohio Air Base Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force, in a last minute request, has asked Congress for $359,000 to build a taxiway at its Clinton County, Ohio, base.

The money would finance 44,900 square yards of taxi access pavement to the end of the runway at the all-weather research airport.

er was under the old pump at the far end of the boy's basement.

Our games were either in Bill Pickens' ball park in the river bottoms at the west end of Main Street or way out where Pick-away County's Fair Grounds are now located.

Our games being on Saturdays, we dressed at home and either walked or rode our bikes to and from the games.

No nice big school bus to haul you to and from in those days! About 1909 things changed. D. B. Clark became the first faculty coach and football at Everts High School officially, became a respectable game for its students.

Ohio's Champ Driver-Girl—Defends Sex

WASHINGTON (AP)—The only girl to make the finals of a nationwide teen-age driving contest said today it isn't fair to poke fun at women drivers.

"Some men are good drivers and some aren't. Some women are good drivers and some aren't," said Mary Lou Crum, a 17-year-old bride from East Palestine, Ohio. She will compete against 50 boys for the $1,250 top prize in the contest the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce calls the "Road-co." The final competition starts tomorrow.

She explained her reasoning this way: "How tall you are and how strong you are—they count a lot in who gets to the finals."

Mary Lou said a girl may be just as good a driver as a boy but: "Girls aren't as strong. It takes more effort for them to return the wheel. They're not tall enough, either. They can't see out of the window as well. And they don't let you use pillows in the roadco."

Mary Lou doesn't need a pillow to see through the window and she looks perfectly capable of taking care of herself. She's a pretty five feet five.

She said she's not scared of challenging the 50 boys, but: "I wish there was at least one more girl here."

Ohio To Take Part In Surprise Alert

COLUMBUS (AP)—A surprise Civil Defense alert at an unannounced date has been scheduled for Ohio and six other states.

It will be the first of its kind since World War II, and probably will take place during the last week of October. In addition to Ohio, the District of Columbia, Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia will take part.

Thane M. Durey, deputy state CD director, said it was undecided as yet to what extent the Ohio CD personnel would take part.

Bank Cashier Dies

SUMMIT, N. J. (AP)—Nathan C. Lenfestey, 64, executive vice president and cashier of the National City Bank of New York, died Sunday.

2 Ohio Bandits Get Long Terms

DENVER (AP)—Two Marion, Ohio, men, Don L. Swearingen, 30, and Harold E. Waits, 32, have been sentenced to 2-25 year terms in the Colorado prison after pleading guilty to aggravated robbery charges. The men admitted armed robbery of a tavern in which $493 was taken June 26. Their teen-aged wives were also arrested but no charges were placed against them and they were released. The men are also accused of bringing to Colorado five revolvers taken in a Springfield, Ohio, burglary. That charge is still pending.

About 40 tons of steel reinforcing bars are used in a mile of two-lane concrete highway.

Panel OKs Ohio Judge Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved the nomination of James C. Connell as federal judge for the Northern District of Ohio. Senate confirmation is expected today or tomorrow. Eight senators on the committee voted for Connell yesterday and four did not vote. Connell's nomination was backed by both Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and Sen. Burke (D-Ohio).

Ohio Trio Cited On Robbery Counts

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va. (AP)—Glenn William Herrell, 22, and two women, Martha Moyer and Bessie Irene Wilson, all from the Fostoria, Ohio, area, were bound over to a grand jury yesterday on a charge of attempted robbery Herrell, a Mansfield, Ohio, Reformatory parolee, and the women were arrested on Ohio 7 near Gallipolis Friday following a holdup attempt at a grocery-service station here.

Ex-Official Dies

BELVEDERE, Calif. (AP)—F. Forrest Mitchell, 84, secretary to three governors and state official over a 40-year period, died yesterday.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

It won't be long until school starts and, no doubt, the football squad and the High School Band have already been practicing for the coming season. We wonder if today's High School football players appreciate how nice they have it?

Forty or fifty years ago, there was very little glamour in the game—the boys played because they liked to play football. In the first place the Board of Education and the faculty would have nothing to do with the team, either as sponsors or in sanctioning football as a legitimate activity of the school. And, furthermore, in no way was participation in the game by any student to interfere to the least degree with regular classes or study periods.

Any infraction of the rule could mean expulsion. All games were played on Saturdays and were out of town—we had no money to pay to bring teams here. There were no bands, no cheerleaders, no bleachers—we didn't need them, for there were no spectators.

Each player paid for his own uniform, such as it was; helped to buy the ball, and if there happened to be a home game, chipped in to pay the expenses of the visitors as well as the rental of the playing field.

For color—Joseph's Coat could not compare with an Everts' football squad. Old cast-off football gear, baseball suits, overalls and even patched up everyday clothes made up the playing togs. For shoes—rubber-soled sneakers were generally worn, though some sported regular shoes fitted with homemade leather cleats nailed to the soles.

It has happened—even baseball shoes, spikes and all, were worn until a referee spied them and stopped the game until the spikes were removed or the player finished the game in his wool socks. For headgear, most of the players wore woolen stocking caps—the best protection for the least money.

One year—someone gave the team a leather helmet to be worn by the one in the backfield who was to carry the ball. We soon found out that this was a complete give-away, so to fool the opposing team, the quarterback would mix up his plays and hand the ball to one of the backs without the helmet.

Some of the boys wore shin-guards and a few had the big rubber nose-guards. Anyone remember how those gimmicks could knock your teeth out? We had no regular coach. For playing strategy, our offensive signals merely informed the rest of the team—who was to carry the ball and which way he was bound.

We had but one plan of defense—keep your eye on the ball and nail the one who had it. In those days passing the ball was not permitted—you either tucked it under your arm and ran, or kicked it.

The squad was usually comprised of 15 players, each of which must know the fundamentals and a few of the niceties of two of the playing positions. In addition some must know the duties of a linesman, timekeeper, water boy and even how to handle a litter in case someone was knocked out so that he could not leave the field under his own steam.

The first team was made up of the 11 toughest and hardest of the squad, who could stand the gaff of a full game and were not drawn from play unless knocked cold. When it was necessary to substitute, as many as three or four shifts of position were made to most effectively use the new man coming in the game.

John Foll, our beloved janitor of Everts, saw that we had a nice warm place in which to dress—in his boiler room or the coal bin, adjoining. We usually practiced on the Glass Factory commons or on the west side of the old Everts building.

When we came in from practice—if it was cold—old John would have a tub of warm water ready for us so that we might sponge off, but in ordinary weather, our show-

Benson Assails High Dairy Props

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson has declared proposals in Congress to boost dairy price supports would cost the Treasury 100 million dollars a year, and put speculators in a position to "cash in on windfall profits" that might "amount to several million dollars."

Benson made these comments at a news conference with reference to the farm bill now before the Senate. One issue raised in the Senate is whether to boost dairy supports from the present 75 per cent of parity to 85 per cent, effective Sept. 1, for a period ending next April 1.

Convict-Writer Suicide Victim

BALTIMORE (AP)—Edwin J. Becker, 38, author, newspaperman and bad check artist, was buried yesterday. Becker, who once served time in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, among other places, killed himself last Friday. He gained national prominence with short stories and a book published while serving a term in the New Jersey Penitentiary on a forgery conviction.

Funds For Ohio Air Base Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force, in a last minute request, has asked Congress for $359,000 to build a taxiway at its Clinton County, Ohio, base.

The money would finance 44,900 square yards of taxi access pavement to the end of the runway at the all-weather research airport.

er was under the old pump at the far end of the boy's basement.

Our games were either in Bill Pickens' ball park in the river bottoms at the west end of Main Street or way out where Pick-away County's Fair Grounds are now located.

Our games being on Saturdays, we dressed at home and either walked or rode our bikes to and from the games.

No nice big school bus to haul you to and from in those days! About 1909 things changed. D. B. Clark became the first faculty coach and football at Everts High School officially, became a respectable game for its students.

Ohio's Champ Driver—Girl—Defends Sex

WASHINGTON (AP)—The only girl to make the finals of a nationwide teen-age driving contest said today it isn't fair to poke fun at women drivers.

"Some men are good drivers and some aren't. Some women are good drivers and some aren't," said Mary Lou Crum, a 17-year-old bride from East Palestine, Ohio. She will compete against 50 boys for the $1,250 top prize in the contest the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce calls the "Road-co." The final competition starts tomorrow.

She explained her reasoning this way: "How tall you are and how strong you are—they count a lot in who gets to the finals."

Mary Lou said a girl may be just as good a driver as a boy but: "Girls aren't as strong. It takes more effort for them to return the wheel. They're not tall enough, either. They can't see out of the window as well. And they don't let you use pillows in the roadco."

Mary Lou doesn't need a pillow to see through the window and she looks perfectly capable of taking care of herself. She's a pretty five feet five.

She said she's not scared of challenging the 50 boys, but: "I wish there was at least one more girl here."

Ancient Wood Discovery Recalls Similar Find Reported Near City

Once imbedded deep in a sandstone formation long before the time of man, a section of ancient wood was recently discovered by quarry workers at Amherst, a short distance southwest of Lorain.

The find had details of special interest to geological students, not only in the regions along the shores of Lake Erie but in Pickaway County as well. Mac Noggle, leading authority here on this section's prehistoric times pointed out that similar wood had also been found in this part of the state in recent years.

A noteworthy discovery of this type, Noggle said, was made during the early stages of construction of the Du Pont Company's multi-million dollar plant south of the city. A log which must have dated back to this region's pre-glacial times, Noggle recalled, was found during deep excavations at the plant site.

The ancient wood recently found at Amherst was dug up at sandstone quarries widely known in northern Ohio.

THIS PIECE of wood was found approximately one hundred feet below the surface of the ground. It is a portion of a tree that grew some 300 million years ago and is estimated to be at least three hundred million years old. This estimate is based upon the depth at which it was located and the geological age of the various strata of northern Ohio.

Much wood found in some geological strata is petrified. This is not true of this unusual section of wood. Actually, it is the original wood, charred either by fire or pressure. If burned by fire, lightning doubtless was the cause of the flames that consumed a portion of this unusual relic, since man was not as yet on earth during those long-ago times.

The most logical explanation for the charred condition of the wood is suggested by interested geologists who point out that pressure of millions of tons of sedimentary material would cause intense heat that would char wood or turn it into coal. Actually the sedimentary deposits at Amherst are credited to the Carboniferous Period in geologic history. As the name suggests, this is the period during which all coal was formed from the wood and leaves of prehistoric plants.

Experts try to imagine what happened after the piece of wood reached what was to be its final resting place. Doubtless, it became waterlogged and sank into the sand of a deep river bottom. With the passage of millions of years, tremendous quantities of sand were deposited until the great pressure caused each minute grain to be squeezed against the other.

This caused friction which resulted in heat. The effect of this high temperature is supposed to have resulted in the carbonization of the piece of wood which was then held in the sandstone until its recent discovery by the quarry workers.

Extortioner Fails In Antiques Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mrs. Maude Christiansen's stolen antiques, which she values at $5,000, are still missing but police are holding a man who, they say, tried to capitalize on her loss.

Mrs. Christiansen said she got a phone call yesterday from a man who said:

"Meet me in the Pacific Electric station at 1 p.m. Wear a red rose so I'll know you. Bring $250 in a manila envelope and I'll tell you where your antiques are."

Mrs. Christiansen notified police and kept the date. Officers arrested a man who approached her and booked him on suspicion of extortion. They identified him as Joseph A. Swafford, 34, of Portland, Ore., an ex-convict, and quoted him as saying concerning the antiques:

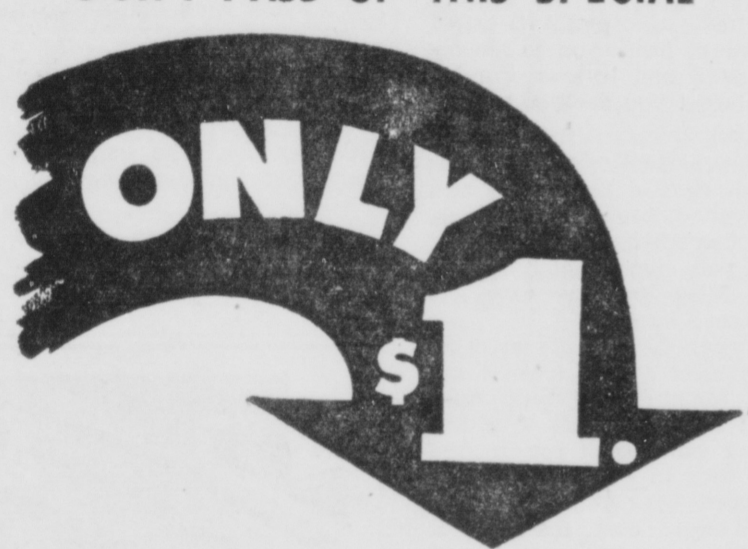

"Now, I didn't take them. Haven't any idea who did. I just thought this might be a good way to pick up a fast $250."

Top Aide Says U.N. Fails To Reach Goals

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The U. N.'s chief executive says the organization still falls short of its goals but that the threat of world destruction must spur it to work for cooperation.

In his 1953-54 report to the general assembly, Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld said in a foreword:

"Such an account confirms the diversity and scope of the efforts by the governments of members to develop effective international cooperation through the United Nations. It is also a reminder of the wide gap between purpose and achievement."

Partly to blame, Hammarskjöld says, is the world itself.

"At present the organization is severely handicapped by the fact that it has to function in a world where the necessity of coexistence is as yet not fully recognized. But this is, in itself, an additional and compelling reason for doing everything possible to strengthen the United Nations. The increasing danger of destruction will sooner or later force us out of a system of balance of power into a system of truce and universal international cooperation."

Bids Received On Ohio Airport

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Better Homes Service Co. of Warren, Ohio, submitted the apparent low bids for work at Youngstown Municipal Airport, the Army Corps of Engineers reports.

Col. G. T. Derby, Huntington district engineer, said the Warren firm submitted bids of $25,642 and $27,284.50 for construction of a post exchange at the airport at Vienna. The second figure was based on certain alternates in specifications.

Col. G. T. Derby, Huntington district engineer, said the Warren firm submitted bids of $25,642 and $27,284.50 for construction of a post exchange at the airport at Vienna. The second figure was based on certain alternates in specifications.

Extortioner Fails In Antiques Case

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mrs. Maude Christiansen's stolen antiques, which she values at $5,000, are still missing but police are holding a man who, they say, tried to capitalize on her loss.

Mrs. Christiansen said she got a phone call yesterday from a man who said:

"Meet me in the Pacific Electric station at 1 p.m. Wear a red rose so I'll know you. Bring $250 in a manila envelope and I'll tell you where your antiques are."

Mrs. Christiansen notified police and kept the date. Officers arrested a man who approached her and booked him on suspicion of extortion. They identified him as Joseph A. Swafford, 34, of Portland, Ore., an ex-convict, and quoted him as saying concerning the antiques:

"Naw, I didn't take them. Haven't any idea who did. I just thought this might be a good way to pick up a fast $250."

DISAPPEARING NIAGARA
GEOLOGISTS who for years have claimed that rock conditions that resulted in Niagara Falls doom them to extinction point to the recent slide which carried an estimated 185,000 tons of its brink into the gorge as proof of their contention.
The scientific explanation of this chipping away of the falls is that the river, flowing over a layer of hard dolomite capping a bed of soft shale, cannot gradually scour out its channel like a normal stream. It undercuts the shale until the dolomite gets top heavy and breaks off.
Niagara has been disintegrating ever since it was discovered by the white man, but the latest slide is the largest ever reported. An estimated 80,000 tons broke off in 1931, an event that brought pleas in Congress to save the falls. Three years later Table Rock dropped from the Horseshoe Falls on the Canadian side and camera fans flocked to Prospect Point. The point may last another 10 years, the experts say, but probably no longer than that.

news behind the news

Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles from Rome written by Ray Tucker on his home-ward-bound trip from Egypt.
ROME—A lingering inferiority complex over falling for such a fake as Benito Mussolini and comic opera performances in two world wars may after all result in Italy being a leading force in closing the vital gap in the Western European defense frontier. She may thereby retrieve the strutting Il Duce's blunders.
It has been generally believed that Italy and France, which have not signed the European army pact, had a gentleman's agreement, and would act together for or against the proposed organization. But such is not the case, according to well-informed observers at Rome.
Premier Scelba is working for prompt action so as not to repeat the dead dictator's mistakes of picking the wrong horse in the international derby.
If Italy signs up, it would leave France as the only remaining holdout, a dangerous situation in France's present precarious position at home and overseas. It should strengthen Premier Mendes-France in the difficult task of obtaining his parliament's approval. By aiding Scelba in his running fight with the Communists, it will help him, a friend of the West, to remain in power. It would reinvigorate the democracies, militarily and spiritually, after the diplomatic disaster at Geneva.
TOUGH JOB—Scelba, Italy's ablest political leaders since the war, needs U. S. aid to remain in power, to repel the Reds inside and outside parliament, and to continue the rehabilitation of his shattered country.
It is no exaggeration to say that he might have been overthrown, if the American Congress had voted to withhold funds from Italy and France because of their failure to ratify EDC. In a literal sense, both these pro-West leaders require U.S.A. assistance to keep them on top of the parliamentary pile.
Scelba also counts on the West, to help him obtain a favorable settlement of the Trieste dispute with Yugoslavia, and prospects in that direction are growing brighter as a result of Anglo-American intervention. To him, a resolution of that old Adriatic controversy means as much as the Korean truce did to Eisenhower.
It will also be a feather in the chic diplomatic bonnet of Claire Luce, American ambassador to

SYNOPSIS
A dated scrap of paper marked "Delta Lines, Cabin 5," sends detective Carney Wilde aboard a luxury boat cruising from Cincinnati to New Orleans, in the hope of apprehending one Charles Alexander Stewart. CHAPTER SEVEN
I EASED the key gently into the lock of Miss Pomeroy's room and turned it. Then I pulled the key out silently and put it away. I went in fast. I had my hand on my .38 in the shoulder holster when I stepped over the threshold. I shut the door and stepped warily toward the bathroom, peeked inside quickly. Nothing. I took my hand away from my gun. There were twin beds. A luggage rack stood at the foot of each, and both of them held two suitcases. A fur-lined tweed coat hung across the two nearest me. In the corner near the bathroom was a large scuffed pigskin kit-bag. Miss Pomeroy really did have a lot of luggage. The trunk was against the far wall.
It was a big airplane-cloth wardrobe in tan with chocolate stripes. It was opened vertically, the opening facing away from me. I moved forward.
I pulled the trunk away from the wall and used my right hand and right foot to spread it open farther. The two halves slid apart with a tin metallic jangling of empty clothes hangers. The sound was harsh and almost startling in the still room.
A gun jabbed into my back while I was still leaning heavily on my right arm, entirely off-balance. "Stay just like that," a voice said in a wavery tone, a voice made thin and tight with tension. "Who are you?"
I turned my head and looked at the gun that was only inches away. A small gun, probably a .32, but big enough. It was bigger than the one Stewart had used to shoot me. It was a frightened moment before I looked up to see who was holding the gun.
Miss Pomeroy stood tautly poised like a fencer, both feet squarely on the floor, her knees slightly bent, her whole body concentrated on the gun she held pointed toward my belt buckle. Dark eyebrows were pulled into a straight line and her full, soft mouth was thinned with tension. She held an open handbag in her left hand, held it high, ready to flip it into my face as a distraction if I tried to rush her.
I wasn't going to jump the gun. But I was thinking how easy it would be if I didn't have a bad shoulder. And if my nerve had been better. She stepped back briskly, as if she could read my thoughts.
"We need more light," she said, almost to herself. She slid her handbag under her right elbow, clamped it fast and then fumbled along the wall for the switch, her eyes never once leaving mine. I shifted my weight slowly to both feet, but I kept my right hand flat on top of the trunk, blinking my eyes when bright overhead lights came on.
Miss Pomeroy wore a heather tweed suit, cut to fit snugly on her tall, slim body. I could see a small triangle of blue sweater at the neck. She was very tall for a woman, five-foot-nine, possibly more, but she still wore high heels on her cordovan pumps. With those heels she was a scant two or three inches shorter than I was, but everything was perfectly in proportion.
I looked at her. And she was the promised land. It was a sharp, unexpected feeling, just as distinct in its way as the pain in my shoulder. Her eyebrows lost their hard straightness and her forehead showed new lines of bewilderment. Her mouth was no longer tense.
"What are you doing here?" The voice dwindled to a soft whisper, with none of its previous harshness. She was lovely, I thought.
"The empty trunk," I said. "The pursuer was curious about it. There's a fugitive we think might be on board and we—" "And you?" Miss Pomeroy said, "represent the pursuer."
"Sure," I said stupidly.
"That's a lie," she snapped, and any hint of unsureness was gone from her voice. "You're a private detective from Philadelphia. Your name is Carney Wilde and you're a very rough fellow. Oh, I know you, Mr. Carney Wilde. All about you. Now I think we'll call whatever passes for police on this boat."
The bewilderment was all mine now. I muttered, staring at her, "How do you—?"
"I took your picture once," she said watching me warily while her left hand moved in long swift arcs across the wall, searching for the telephone. "You were quite the man of the hour, all because you had beat a confession out of some poor young man. The cops all thought you were fine." Her dark blue eyes told me her opinion was different.
"I never beat a confession out of anybody," I said hotly.
"Not even Gerald Dodge?" she asked, her lips scornful.
"Not even Dodge," I growled. "We proved he was a murderer, three times a murderer. He went for the high pillow. Do you remember all that, too? Or do you just remember I clouted him once while we were playing guessing games?"
The telephone was on the other side of the door from her and she was getting farther away with each movement.
"The phone's on the other side," I said. "The man you want is the pursuer. Tell him to come down here and bring Russell with him. And while you're about it, you—" Miss Pomeroy staggered forward, almost going to her knees. Only a convulsive effort kept her on her feet. I jumped forward, stumbling against the trunk, but managing to snatch the pistol from her hand while she was still off balance.
"Russell's here. Been outside all the time."
The assistant pursuer tried to grin at me but wobbled into a nervous grimace. He had shoved open the door, timing it just right to stagger Miss Pomeroy.
"Good boy," I said.

nations are eager to regain a small portion of their vanished ancient glory.
The Greeks want greater recognition in Allied councils as a reward for their troops' valor in Korea. The Italians want to be accepted as evidence of forgiveness for their military disasters in World War I, and also under Mussolini for her part in World War II.
These ancient peoples' resurgence of spirit after so many vicissitudinous years emphasizes the generally unrecognized fact that the Allies' fortunes are improving in what could be "Russia's soft underbelly," should war eventuate. It may help to redress the imbalance resulting from Far Eastern reverses.
Although not an integrated or formal alliance, it consists of five strategically situated nations—Spain, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey. On the North African shore the Allies occupy air bases from Gibraltar to the Western border of Egypt. All are within bombing distance of Russian oil wells, factories and great power dams.
The massing of Western power in this sector presumably explains why Russia is concentrating on the conquest and consolidation of the Asiatic peoples on the other side of the globe.

The Taming of Carney Wilde
by BART SPICER
Miss Pomeroy held herself erect with one hand against the wardrobe trunk. Her open handbag had fallen to the floor. I went forward and picked it up.
"You hold this," I pitched the girl's pistol to Russell. I unpicked the handbag over the bed, shook everything out, looking for her wallet. Miss Pomeroy kept hers in a zipper compartment that was difficult to open with only one hand. Inside it was a flat packet of money, all in 50's. About $500 or $600, I guessed. With the cash was a red morocco card case and that was what I was after.
Miss E. J. Pomeroy lived in Narberth, a close-in suburb of Philadelphia. She was a member of the Camera club, the Red Cross, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Reserve Officers of Naval Services. A deck of business cards said she was also E. J. Pomeroy of E. J. Pomeroy and Associates, commercial photographers. Nothing else looked interesting in her bag except a small untied diamond in a twist of tissue. I put everything back as neatly as I could.
Then I took the gun from Russell and tossed it on to the bed.
I said to Miss Pomeroy: "What I said before is perfectly true. There may be a fugitive on board this boat. A murderer. He reserved this bedroom almost six weeks ago for this cruise. Then, at the last minute, you showed up in his place. With an empty trunk. I suppose I should go about this another way, but I was afraid that your conversation with Sgt. Keble would have put you out of any notion of co-operating. So I asked the pursuer to bring you to his office while I had a look around. What brought you back so soon?"
"Couldn't figure it," Russell said. "We were halfway up the stairs when she gave a little gasp and turned around, heading back here. I couldn't catch her in time."
"Glad you came back," I said. I asked Miss Pomeroy why she had returned so quickly.
She shrugged. "The pursuer came a few minutes ago to look at my ticket. I assumed he would want to see it again. I'd left it in my coat, so I came back for it. And found a thug in my cabin."
I reached back for the heavy, fur-lined tweed coat, hauled it around to find the pocket and pulled out a wadded mass of papers. The top one said "Delta Lines" and it was an official receipt. I didn't look at the rest of them.
"Fair enough," I said. I got up and walked aimlessly across the floor, staring out at the dull water and the icy shoreline. "But what about the empty trunk?"
"What about it?" Miss Pomeroy snapped.
"An empty trunk is rather unusual," I said softly. "Most people going on a trip take a full one. What did you fill yours with, Miss Pomeroy?"
"Nothing."
I glanced over my shoulder at Russell. "It wasn't empty when she came aboard," he said flatly. The good humor was gone now and he turned to stare suspiciously at Miss Pomeroy.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The new figures which emerge in so many places these days upon our consciousness and into history were not born yesterday. To understand them it is necessary to search out their pasts; their ideas as students; their political associations; their training. Only then can we understand who it is with whom we deal because the mature man is only an older boy.

For instance, I have never been able to understand General George Marshall's lack of knowledge of Chinese personalities since he was in Tientsin, as the executive officer of the 15th Infantry from 1924-27 when he was a lieutenant colonel. This was the period of the union between the Kuomintang and the Communists, leading to the split during Christmas week of 1926-27.

These were years of revolution, of civil warfare; of the marching of troops and of protective measures taken by foreign troops, including the 15th Infantry. The United States sent additional Marines to protect American lives and property under General Smedley Butler and some were stationed in Tientsin and nearby Peking.

The original leader of the Chinese Communists was Chen Tu-shiu who was replaced by Chu Teh and Mao Tze-tung and Li Lih-san. Surely, General Marshall, when he was in Tientsin, read at least the local newspapers printed in English, which gave full accounts of these events. Chou En-lai, when he was in China in those years, lived in Tientsin.

Similarly, it is astonishing that Ho Chi Minh is made out to be a man of mystery. In those same years, that is between 1924-27, he spent considerable time with the Chinese Communists in Canton and in the drive northward. His original name was Nguyen Ai Quoc and he is an Annamite.

Since boyhood he has been a revolutionist, spending many years abroad in China, England and France. He actually joined the Communist Party in Paris, and was sent to Moscow in 1923 for an indoctrination course which is essential for all Communists who are to become leaders in their own countries.

He was, for a time, in 1924, employed in the Soviet consulate in Boston, a position which is to be explained by the fact that many important Communists are citizens not only of their own countries but of Soviet Russia as well. Most of the years between 1924 and 1930, he spent in Asia, principally China and Siam, working for the Revolution.

The Viet Minh movement, which Ho Chi Minh heads, started as a united front operation designed to bring together all elements in Indochina, conservative, liberal, and Communists is an anti-French effort to end colonialism. It was naturally popular, as the French have always been disliked in Indochina, and received support from many anti-Communist elements. Few realized, at first, that it was a Communist movement, directed by the Third International and that Ho had been especially trained for it.

With such a history, it is difficult to understand why the United States Office of Strategic Services employed Ho Chi Minh as an agent. The OSS was designed to establish a super-intelligence agency to provide our government with correct information on all subjects.

I wasn't going to jump the gun, but I was thinking how easy it would be if I didn't have a bad shoulder. And if my nerve had been better. She stepped back briskly, as if she could read my thoughts.

"We need more light," she said, almost to herself. She slid her handbag under her right elbow, clamped it fast and then fumbled along the wall for the switch, her eyes never once leaving mine. I shifted my weight slowly to both feet, but I kept my right hand flat on top of the trunk, blinking my eyes when bright overhead lights came on.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

A total of 278 Pickaway Counties have enjoyed stays at Tar Hollow during the Summer camping season.

Solauqua Garden club held a flower show and heard an address on fall planting of bulbs during a regular meeting.

Mrs. Enid Denham and children are vacationing in Canada.

tweed suit, cut to fit snugly on her tall, slim body. I could see a small triangle of blue sweater at the neck. She was very tall for a woman, five-foot-nine, possibly more, but she still wore high heels on her cordovan pumps. With those heels she was a scant two or three inches shorter than I was, but everything was perfectly in proportion.

I looked at her. And she was the promised land. It was a sharp, unexpected feeling, just as distinct in its way as the pain in my shoulder. Her eyebrows lost their hard straightness and her forehead showed new lines of bewilderment. Her mouth was no longer tense.

"What are you doing here?" The voice dwindled to a soft whisper, with none of it previous harshness. She was lovely, I thought.

"The empty trunk," I said. "The pursuer was curious about it. There's a fugitive we think might be on board and we—"

"And you," Miss Pomeroy said, "represent the pursuer."

"Sure," I said stupidly. "That's a lie," she snapped, and any hint of unsureness was gone from her voice. "You're a private detective from Philadelphia. Your name is Carney Wilde and you're a very rough fellow. Oh, I know you, Mr. Carney Wilde. All about you. Now I think we'll call whatever passes for police on this boat."

The bewilderment was all mine now. I muttered, staring at her, "How do you—"

"I took your picture once," she said watching me warily while her left hand moved in long swift arcs across the wall, searching for the telephone. "You were quite the man of the hour, all because you had beat a confession out of some poor young man. The cops all thought you were fine." Her dark blue eyes told me her opinion was different.

"I never beat a confession out of anybody," I said hotly. "Not even Gerald Dodge?" she asked, her lips scornful.

"Not even Dodge," I growled. "We proved he was a murderer, three times a murderer. He went for the high pillow. Do you remember all that, too? Or do you just remember I clouted him once while we were playing guessing games?"

The telephone was on the other side of the door from her and she was getting farther away with each movement. "The phone's on the other side," I said. "The man you want is the pursuer. Tell him to come down here and bring Russell with him. And while you're about it, you—"

Miss Pomeroy staggered forward, almost going to her knees. Only a convulsive effort kept her on her feet. I jumped forward, stumbling against the trunk, but managing to catch the pistol from her hand while she was still off balance.

"Russell's here. Been outside all the time."

The assistant pursuer tried to grin at me but wobbled into a nervous grimace. He had shoved open the door, timing it just right to stagger Miss Pomeroy.

"Good boy," I said.

by Bart Spicer. Distributed by King

Miss Pomeroy held herself erect with one hand against the wardrobe trunk. Her open handbag had fallen to the floor. I went forward and picked it up.

"You hold this," I pitched the girl's pistol to Russell. I upended the handbag over the bed, shook everything out, looking for her wallet. Miss Pomeroy kept hers in a zipper compartment that was difficult to open with only one hand. Inside it was a flat packet of money, all in 50's. About $500 or $600, I guessed. With the cash was a red morocco card case and that was what I was after.

Miss E. J. Pomeroy lived in Narberth, a close-in suburb of Philadelphia. She was a member of the Camera club, the Red Cross, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Reserve Officers of Naval Services. A deck of business cards said she was also E. J. Pomeroy of E. J. Pomeroy and Associates, commercial photographers. Nothing else looked interesting in her bag except a small uncut diamond in a twist of tissue. I put everything back as neatly as I could.

Then I took the gun from Russell and tossed it on to the bed.

I said to Miss Pomeroy: "What I said before is perfectly true. There may be a fugitive on board this boat. A murderer. He reserved this bedroom almost six weeks ago for this cruise. Then, at the last minute, you showed up in his place. With an empty trunk. I suppose I should go about this another way, but I was afraid that your conversation with Sgt. Keble would have put you out of any notion of co-operating. So I asked the pursuer to bring you to his office while I had a look around. What brought you back so soon?"

"Couldn't figure it," Russell said. "We were halfway up the stairs when she gave a little gasp and turned around, heading back here. I couldn't catch her in time."

"Glad you came back," I said. I asked Miss Pomeroy why she had returned so quickly.

She shrugged. "The pursuer came a few minutes ago to look at my ticket. I assumed he would want to see it again. I'd left it in my coat, so I came back for it. And found a thug in my cabin."

I reached back for the heavy, fur-lined tweed coat, hauled it around to find the pocket and pulled out a wadded mass of papers. The top one said "Delta Lines" and it was an official receipt. I didn't look at the rest of them.

"Fair enough," I said. I got up and walked aimlessly across the floor, staring out at the dull water and the icy shoreline. "But what about the empty trunk?"

"What about it?" Miss Pomeroy snapped.

"An empty trunk is rather unusual," I said softly. "Most people going on a trip take a full one. What did you fill yours with, Miss Pomeroy?"

"Nothing."

I glanced over my shoulder at Russell. "It wasn't empty when she came aboard," he said flatly. The good humor was gone now and he turned to stare suspiciously at Miss Pomeroy.

news behind the news

Editor's Note: This is the first of two articles from Rome written by Ray Tucker on his home-bound trip from Egypt.

ROME—A lingering inferiority complex over falling for such a fake as Benito Mussolini and comic opera performances in two world wars may after all result in Italy being a leading force in closing the vital gap in the Western European defense frontier. She may thereby retrieve the strutting Il Duce's blunders.

It has been generally believed that Italy and France, which have not signed the European army pact, had a gentleman's agreement, and would act together for or against the proposed organization. But such is not the case, according to well-informed observers at Rome.

Premier Scelba is working for prompt action so as not to repeat the dead dictator's mistakes of picking the wrong horse in the international derby.

If Italy signs up, it would leave France as the only remaining holdout, a dangerous situation in France's present precarious position at home and overseas. It should strengthen Premier Mendes-France in the difficult task of obtaining his parliament's approval. By aiding Scelba in his running fight with the Communists, it will help him, a friend of the West, to remain in power. It would reinvigorate the democracies, militarily and spiritually, after the diplomatic disaster at Geneva.

TOUGH JOB—Scelba, Italy's ablest political leaders since the war, needs U. S. aid to remain in power, to repel the Reds inside and outside parliament, and to continue the rehabilitation of his shattered country.

It is no exaggeration to say that he might have been overthrown, if the American Congress had voted to withhold funds from Italy and France because of their failure to ratify EDC. In a literal sense, both these pro-West leaders require U.S.A. assistance to keep them on top of the parliamentary pile.

Scelba also counts on the West, to help him obtain a favorable settlement of the Trieste dispute with Yugoslavia, and prospects in that direction are growing brighter as a result of Anglo-American intervention. To him, a resolution of that old Adriatic controversy means as much as the Korean truce did to Eisenhower.

It will also be a feather in the chic diplomatic bonnet of Claire Luce, American ambassador to Rome. Her experiences have been varied and peculiar.

When she was first appointed, the Italians felt slighted. Since women take almost no part in public life here, they resented the idea that one should be sent here as a representative of the United States. It aggravated their feeling of inferiority and wounded pride. They thought she was another penance for their sins.

LUCE WINS—But Ambassador Luce has been finally accepted by the people and politicians. She has shown a warm interest in their social, economic and agricultural reforms. She has taken time to visit them, which few diplomats bother to do. She is the Republicans' Eleanor Roosevelt! She has taken an important part in discussions over Trieste and EDC, although largely as the spokesman for the White House and State Department. But it requires brains to interpret messages and meanings. Her reports on Italian sentiment and reactions also have been helpful.

In short, the "blaboney" girl is making good from her home in former Queen Margarita's palace on Rome's equivalent of Fifth Avenue.

In a certain sense, Italy's new attitude resembles the Greeks', save for different reasons. These nations are eager to regain a small portion of their vanished ancient glory.

The Greeks want greater recognition in Allied councils as a reward for their troops' valor in Korea. The Italians want to be accepted as evidence of forgiveness for their military disasters in World War I, and also under Mussolini for her part in World War II.

These ancient peoples' resurgence of spirit after so many vicissitudinous years emphasizes the generally unrecognized fact that the Allies' fortunes are improving in what could be "Russia's soft underbelly," should war eventuate. It may help to redress the imbalance resulting from Far Eastern reverses.

Although not an integrated or formal alliance, it consists of five strategically situated nations—Spain, Italy, Greece, Yugoslavia and Turkey. On the North African shore the Allies occupy air bases from Gibraltar to the Western border of Egypt. All are within bombing distance of Russian oil wells, factories and great power dams.

The massing of Western power in this sector presumably explains why Russia is concentrating on the conquest and consolidation of the Asiatic peoples on the other side of the globe.

Farmers! You Can Dig Pond, Ditch Now And Save On Taxes

Editor's Note: This is the seventh in a series of articles explaining how the new tax revision law affects individuals.

By CHARLES F. BARRETT

WASHINGTON (AP)—A farmer can now get a tax cut by building himself a pond . . . or digging a ditch.

This is one of the special effects of the huge new tax revision law. In passing out scores of tax benefits, Congress didn't forget the farmer in this congressional election year.

The law permits a farmer to deduct from his income, on tax returns, many outlays for soil or water conservation. Even at the minimum 20 per cent tax rate, each $100 in new deductions mean a tax cut of $20.

The deductions for that purpose are limited in any one year to 25 per cent of the taxpayer's gross income from farming. Note that if you have income aside from farming, you can't deduct 25 per cent of your total income.

If you spend more than 25 per cent of your farm income for soil or water conservation in any one year, you can carry forward the amount over 25 per cent and deduct it on your return the next year. You can keep on carrying these expenditures forward as many years as needed to get your full deduction—but you still can't deduct more than 25 per cent of farm income in any one year.

Soil and water conservation expenses involve moving or treating dirt. They can include such things as leveling, grading, terracing, contour furrowing, construction of diversion channels, drainage ditches, controlling and protecting water-courses, ponds, earthen dams, elimination of brush or planting of windbreaks.

In the past, expenditures for most of these things generally have been added for tax purposes to the original cost of the land. Usually no deduction was allowed for them unless the land was sold. Then they could be counted in figuring whether you made a profit on the sale.

Experts believe half a million farmers will claim new deductions under the new law. They figure the farmers will get tax cuts amounting to 10 million dollars. The revenue loss would be greater, except many farmers pay little or no income tax already.

Aside from his personal expenditures, the law permits a farmer to deduct special assessments by soil and water conservation districts if they are spent for purposes which would be deductible on the farmer's individual return.

A farmer can deduct expenses starting last Jan. 1. But he must decide, in the first year he pays for such things, whether he wants to deduct them or still follow the old law. Once he reports his decision, he can't change his method without permission from the revenue service.

Another tax benefit for farmers in the new law provides that proceeds from sale or exchange of diseased livestock are not taxed if they are reinvested in livestock within one year.

Farmers also pay no tax on proceeds from sale of land necessary to meet acreage limitations under the reclamation laws, provided they invest the proceeds into more land—presumably in another reclamation or irrigation district.

COLUMBUS (AP)—The eastern end of U. S. 40, which runs through Ohio from West Virginia to Indiana, in the next few years will get a 24 million dollar face-lifting, the state highway department has disclosed.

The 21.6 mile section from near Morristown in Belmont County to the Ohio River is called "the most critical stretch" by the department's assistant director and chief engineer, L. F. Schaublin.

The project will include a bypass of St. Clairsville and eliminate numerous curves, says Schaublin.

New School Merger Law Getting OK

'Father' Of Legislation
Says It Gives Local Citizens Power To Act

COLUMBUS (AP)—A new Ohio law to aid school district mergers is barely two months old, but already it is finding acceptance.

Rep. William L. Manahan (R-Defiance), who fathered the statute, says it affords citizens an opportunity to deal directly with their school problems.

Especially, he adds, in counties where school boards and superintendents fail to act.

Effective last June, the law provides for creation of citizens committees in counties for action in merging school districts, except those in cities.

State school officials said Brown County's committee already has formed three districts out of 14, including Georgetown's exempted village district. Dr. Clyde Hissong, state school superintendent, has approved the mergers, but they have yet to go on election ballots to give voters the final say.

Officials said a dozen citizens committees have been formed or are in the process of formation over the state amid indications others are on the way. They come about like this:

Each local school board in a county sends a representative to a merger convention called by the county school board. If the board fails to call a requested convention, it can be forced to do so by petition.

The convention forms a nine-member committee of citizens who are not board members or directly connected with schools.

Committees deciding on consolidations make their recommendations to the state superintendent and each board affected. Approval authorizes placing the question on election ballots for consideration by voters. If 55 percent of those voting on the question approve,

EVEN THOUGH John Rodriguez, 23, appears to be gazing into the eyes of his bride, Irma Maldonado, 20, in New York, he cannot see her. He is blind. They met at a Queen's roller rink, where she volunteered to teach him to skate. Romance developed. Rodriguez operates a newsstand in Manhattan. (International) the consolidation becomes effective.

If the state superintendent disapproves the merger plans, voters in the districts involved can meet and place the proposals on ballots by majority vote of those at the meeting.

Districts in proposed mergers can retain their autonomy if 75 percent of their voters disapprove consolidation at the polls.

Stressing the local nature of citizens committees, Manahan pointed out that members receive only expenses for their services.

A recent opinion by Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill emphasized that status of committees. The ruling said such committees lack funds of their own and have no authority to hire a secretary or legal counsel.

The opinion added that committee members must be legal residents of their counties and that all electors of a district affected by reorganization are entitled to vote on its approval or rejection.

Manahan said the nature of citizens committees virtually assured that members would be vitally interested in their local school problems.

Manahan, himself a former county superintendent, currently is directing work of the Ohio School Survey Committee studying education problems for the Legislature.

Co-sponsors of the citizens committee law with Manahan in the last Legislature were Reps. Roy H. Longenecker (R-Wood), A. Bruce McClure (R-Hamilton), Robert H. Longworth (R-Carroll), Thomas D. Gindlesberger (R-Holmes), Rolland Bright (D-Hocking) and Sens. Charles A. Mosher (R-Lorain) and Ralph L. Humphrey (R-Ashtabula).

WASHINGTON, (AP)—First reaction to the news that Sen. McCarthy will be allowed to cross-examine witnesses in the new Senate investigation of him may have been: "Here we go again."

But it is too soon to say whether the new hearings, on charges of unbecoming official conduct against the Wisconsin Republican, will be a repetition of the recently finished Senate investigation into his fight with Army officials.

Sen. Watkins (R-Utah), chairman of the six-man Senate committee which will conduct these new hearings, said they will start Aug. 30. But his committee still has a lot of clarifying to do before the public knows what to expect.

The committee, appointed last week, has already laid down a few rules for its investigation, but not a full set of rules.

In the McCarthy-Army hearings, McCarthy was also given the privilege of cross-examining witnesses and he employed it in memorable fashion. Those hearings lasted for 36 days.

Because the seven Senators who handled that investigation laid down such loose rules, McCarthy could interrupt them and the proceedings repeatedly with: "Point of order."

McCarthy, the dominant figure throughout those hearings, was able to create diversions, such as with his call to government employees to provide him with secrets from the executive department. One of the charges of misconduct against him now is that call.

Only this much is clear about the new hearings:

1. They will be open to the public and reporters from the press.
2. They will not be televised or broadcast on radio.
3. McCarthy may cross-examine witnesses.

4. Watkins said they will be conducted like a federal court trial.

But it isn't known yet who will against censure until that report was made.

Flanders and Senators Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (Ind-Ore) then made 46 charges against McCarthy for the special committee to examine.

But Watkins says hearsay evidence will not be admitted at the hearings and that he didn't expect Flanders, Fulbright or Morse to be called unless they had personal knowledge of the basis of the charges and could testify with supporting evidence, as in court.

Many, perhaps most, of their charges were based not on personal knowledge but on previous information, alleged or real, produced in other Senate investigations of McCarthy or by him.

It still isn't settled how many of the 46 charges will be investigated, either. The picture should be clearer before the hearings begin.

He served in the Ohio Senate from 1918 to 1924. From 1923 until his retirement in 1950 he owned and operated a job printing shop.

How could Ho Chi Minh provide correct information when he was an agent of Soviet Russia, who had worked for the Kremlin in France, the United States, China and Siam and who had been especially prepared to establish and lead the Communist revolution in Indo-China? The OSS has been accused of having been infiltrated by Communists and the CIA has been accused of retaining too many OSS employees.

It is still not too late to study what the OSS actually did during its short existence and to find the reason why Communists were employed by it, General Mark Clark might go into that. Particularly, it more of them because it is essen-would be of some interest to know why such a character as Ho Chi Minh with a revolutionary history since 1910 when he was 18 years old, was employed by the United States. General "Wild Bill" Donovan may have an explanation and the American people ought to have it.

Instead of fewer Congressional investigations, we ought to have more of them because it is essential for the American people to know why, when we thought we had won a war in 1945, we know in 1954 that we lost it. Why?

Off on an Hour's Vacation!

To be honest with you, we're not certain where he's going. He may be journeying to a branch office of his corporation . . . or he may be heading home for the day . . . or he may be taking his afternoon "constitutional" behind the wheel.

But one thing we know for certain. He's about to embark on a little vacation. And for its length, it will be one of the most wonderful interludes a man could hope to enjoy.

For he's about to spend an hour in his 1954 Cadillac—and here, beyond any question, is the perfect remedy for a trying day.

It will bring him physical relaxation—for his Cadillac is so comfortable and luxurious that merely to sit in the driver's seat is to rest. And the car handles and steers with such complete effortless that every mile is a tonic for the body.

It will bring him mental refreshment—for the car is such a joy to drive and ride in that a man seems almost automatically to leave his cares at the curb.

And it will bring him renewed enthusiasm and interest—for every moment a man spends with his Cadillac serves as a stimulating reminder of his past accomplishments—and acts as a wonderful inspiration for planning and thinking out the future.

All this, of course, is the very essence of Cadillac value. All cars offer transportation—and varying degrees of satisfaction. But it remains for Cadillac to provide a definite therapeutic for the mind and body of a work-weary man.

In this glorious respect, there are simply two types of cars: Cadillacs and all the others.

Come in sometime—when life has grown stale with the toil of the day—and take an hour's vacation in a 1954 Cadillac.

It will be the most refreshing sixty minutes you ever spent on the highway—and we'll be delighted to provide the car at any time!

really handle the hearings: Watkins and the five other senators on his committee or a special counsel to do the examining as Ray H. Jenkins, a Tennessee lawyer hired for the job, did in the Army-McCarthy case?

Watkins said last night a chief counsel will be needed, plus a staff. But he was vague on just what role this counsel will play when the new hearings begin.

In the McCarthy-Army hearings McCarthy was allowed to cross-examine the Army witnesses. And they were allowed, through their special counsel Joseph N. Welch, to cross-examine McCarthy and his staff. In addition, Jenkins and the senators on that investigating committee cross-examined both sides.

But while Watkins said McCarthy will be permitted to cross-examine witnesses against him in this case, too, so far there is no indication Watkins' committee intends to let witnesses against McCarthy cross-examine him or his witnesses.

Which brings up a main point: Just who — if any — will be witnesses against McCarthy? Watkins said last night he didn't know that either, that that's a problem to be ironed out.

Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) had asked the Senate to censure McCarthy. But that body decided to set up a special committee to investigate charges against McCarthy and report back on whether censure was justified, with the understanding there could be no vote for or against censure until that report was made.

Flanders and Senators Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (Ind-Ore) then made 46 charges against McCarthy for the special committee to examine.

But Watkins says hearsay evidence will not be admitted at the hearings and that he didn't expect Flanders, Fulbright or Morse to be called unless they had personal knowledge of the basis of the charges and could testify with supporting evidence, as in court.

'Foundation' Makers Eyeing New Dior Line

Some Scent Gold In Flattening Out U.S. Womanly Curves

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Brassiere and corset manufacturers are taking a second look today at Parisian dressmakers' new ideas about the female figure.

Some are now saying there can be gold in flattening out those curves.

The exaggerated bosom and the pinched-in waist were a bonanza for the industry. But how many manufacturers in any industry that leans on fashion balked at a change?

If the hour-glass look runs out, as Paris decrees, it might lead herds of women to think they needed a new wardrobe—from the skin out.

At first the foundation garment—though a somewhat changed one—will still be necessary if the new duds catch on.

Some doubt that they will, however. They contend Paris may set the fashion for the comparatively few in the high-style world. But they say the mass market in this country usually follows the taste, if any, of the reigning Hollywood movie star. Present contenders for that title all tend toward the lush side.

"If the new style catches on, we can profit from it," one foundation garment expert says. "Bosoms will still be there. In the new styles they just aren't top heavy."

"Word from Paris is that it will take new foundations to achieve the new silhouette. We'll have to learn to make them—and to sell them."

One selling point the industry spokesmen are sharpening up is that women's waists will be freer. The new foundation garments will let out some of the pinch in the middle. They will hold the hips more tightly—but make them look slimmer, less rounded.

"That's where most women have their trouble, anyway," another girdle fashioner says. "The present style of pinching in the waist and accenting the hips makes some of them look a little unattractive."

Manufacturers doubt if the new fashion, supposing it catches on, shows up much in the stores before spring.

Retail store buyers can bite a few nails in the meantime, pondering that situation. Manufacturers say that ordering of fall merchandise has been below normal. Stores are being cautious while they wait to see if all the pleasant predictions about an uplift—in business generally, that is—comes to pass in the fall.

Now they can wonder if the garments—inner and outer—that they are stocking will be considered old hat in a few months. Or whether—as a sizable number loudly contend—that American women will have nothing to do with a style that de-emphasizes glories which with time have been developed into something quite impressive.

And the men? First reaction was bitterly critical of anything tending to change sidewalk scenery.

But manufacturers who champion a change contend that men will find that the bosom line is only "higher, softer and more feminine."

The garment and textile industries have been looking for something to lead them out of their business slump. Who knows? Perhaps the gals, should they all rush to buy new outfits, will blaze the

Sioux Indians So Progressive They Will Not Punish Children

PINE RIDGE, S. D. (AP)—Progressive education may be a new idea to the white man, but it's old stuff to the Sioux Indians.

Some modern parents today are afraid to curb their offspring for fear of giving them a life-long complex.

As for the Sioux Indians, they apparently refrained from punishing their children because they were kind-hearted, and because it was part of their creed to respect any person's right to be an individual.

"The Indian parent believed a child should be taught by example, not by coercion," a tribal leader said. "He felt that if he had taught the child the right way of life he had done his duty, and he was not to blame if the child chose to go wrong."

This attitude has delayed the education of the Sioux Indians. If an Indian child decides he doesn't want to go to school, authorities have a difficult time convincing the parents they should compel him to attend.

One doctor told of an Indian girl who was visited by her parents in a hospital where she was undergoing treatment for tuberculosis. Homesick, the girl pleaded to leave the hospital with them.

"If you take her home she will be dead in three months," warned the doctor.

"But she wants to come home," said the father.

The girl went home. In three months she was dead.

Valor played a great role in the credo of the old Sioux, warriors of the plains.

"Today many young Indian men feel the only way they can prove their valor is to join the Army or to get a job with a rodeo," said an official on the Oglala Sioux Reservation here.

Some 500 Indians left the reservation to fight in the first World War, 2,000 in the second. They make particularly fine infantrymen, and their casualties were heavy.

A number of the tribesmen also volunteered for action in Korea. Some 2,000 veterans now live on or near the reservation.

In the remote sections of the reservation, some of the older Indians now and then still feast on young dog, once highly prized as a delicacy. But, knowing how the white man feels about such a menu, they don't send out formal invitations.

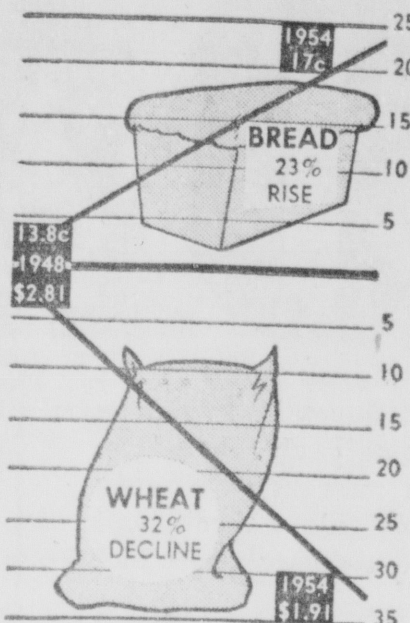

However, the Rev. John Bryde, a young Jesuit missionary who dwells among the Indians and is well-loved by them, chanced to arrive at a moment when a local airedale was the piece de resistance. The embarrassed Indians invited him to join them, figuring he wouldn't know the difference. Father Bryde joined them—for one bite.

"It tasted," he said, "like a wet dog smells."

Asked what he thought was the best thing about the Indian's way of life when he freely roamed the prairies, a wrinkled tribesman replied: "The absence of money."

Their inability to absorb the white man's attitude toward material wealth remains as a major stumbling block in their acceptance of civilization.

The white man invented radio and TV giveaway programs to dramatize the plight of people in distress. The Sioux Indian giveaway system is just the reverse.

Even today, in times of grief over the death of a member, an Indian family sometimes will call in friends and neighbors and distribute all its possessions among them. For some reason this makes everybody feel better, particularly the neighbors.

Polio Vaccine Study Slated

NEW YORK (AP)—Funds have been granted to 18 laboratories for a study of blood samples from children vaccinated against polio. The reports will be funneled to the University of Michigan for overall evaluation of the nationwide vaccine test.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, has announced the grants total $516,000 and the study is already under way.

A grant of $890,000 had previously been given to the University of Michigan for the master study.

The blood samples come from children inoculated early this summer in controlled groups to test effectiveness of the Salk polio vaccine.

NEW YORK (AP)—Former Rep. Vito Marcantonio, fiery, leftwing New Yorker fell dead on a rain-swept street Monday.

The diminutive, 51-year-old former legislator was in the middle of a comeback effort. Defeated in 1950 by a Republican-Democrat-Liberal coalition, he was running again for Congress as candidate of the Independent "Good Neighbor Party."

Marcantonio represented an East Harlem district for 14 years. For many years until last November, he headed the American Labor Party, which sponsored Henry Wallace's presidential campaign in New York State.

World's Christian Churches Nearing Fateful Crossroad

EDITOR'S NOTE — A meeting starting next Sunday in Evanston, Ill., will determine whether centuries-old divisions among Christian religions can be made smaller or must grow still wider. Here is the first of four articles on the Assembly of the World Council of Churches, which some churchmen have called the most important religious event since the Reformation.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Most of the world's churches are moving toward a fateful crossroad. Which way they turn can mean either closer ties or sharper gaps in the centuries-old divisions of Christianity.

The answer hinges on the Assembly of the World Council of Churches opening here next Sunday. "It will be a critical test," said Dr. W. A. Visser't Hooft, the council's general secretary. "We shall see which is stronger—the force of unity of the force of division."

The meeting will be the most widely representative Christian gathering ever held on the American continent.

In range of subjects, purposes and participation, it may well be the most comprehensive Christian assembly ever called.

All things considered said Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, head of the United Lutheran Church and vice chairman of the council's Central Committee, "It is the most crucial interchurch meeting in Christian history."

Fundamental theological questions, buried through the years in the ashes of denominational cleavages and regional aloofness, will be raised in the first such broad attempt to cement Christianity's scattered forces.

"The assembly will deal with subjects that go to the very heart of the faith," Dr. Fry said. "It is a daring thing to do."

"The outcome can determine the lasting strength of the whole movement to bring the churches closer together and increase their effectiveness."

More than 1,500 representatives from 161 denominations with approximately 170 million members in 48 countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain will take part in the meeting.

Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Sem-ary and chairman of the council's U.S. study committee, described it this way:

"The most truly ecumenical assemblage of the followers of Christ who have ever met in one accord in one place" in the 20 centuries since His life and death and resurrection.

Although the World Council met once previously—at its founding six years ago in Amsterdam—it is digging for the first time into basic and potentially shattering—or consolidating—matters of faith.

Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, the council's American secretary, said he believes that the churches, "instead of finding themselves far apart, will discover that they are on common ground to a far greater extent than they have known."

It is such discoveries, on less ticklish theological matters, that started and spurred on the present-day "ecumenical movement"—to rebuild a firm alliance of the world's Christian churches.

That huge project, reckoning with centuries in which churches have been breaking up and going their hard separate ways, had its tiny beginnings at a missionary conference in 1910 at Edinburgh, Scotland.

It was dreamed, discussed and designed at succeeding meetings of Christian leaders in Stockholm

Coronation's Top Item's Forgotten
BEDFORD, Va. (AP)—The crowning of Miss Mary Babb Venable as queen of Bedford County's bi-centennial celebration went off just fine here yesterday, except for one little thing.

Brig. Gen. William M. Stokes Jr., commander of the 80th Infantry Division, was to have done the honors at the coronation.

At the appointed moment, Stokes arose and looked to an assistant, expecting to be handed the crown.

The assistant looked blank.

The master of ceremonies, Charles Green, looked embarrassed.

Sorry, said Green, he had left the crown at home.

The general made like he was placing a crown on Miss Venable's brunette locks, proclaimed her queen, and the 10,000 spectators cheered.

in 1925, in Lauzanne, Switzerland in 1927, at Oxford and Edinburgh in 1937. In 1948 at Amsterdam it culminated in the World Council.

The council does not seek to become a world church, or even to arrange mergers, viewing that as the task of individual denominations.

But it does seek, said Dr. Visser't Hooft, "to be an instrument of the Holy Spirit for healing our divisions."

Except for the Roman Catholic, nearly every major church will be represented.

Although Roman Catholic churchmen have attended some previous meetings of World Council groups, none will be present at Evanston under a ruling by Samuel Cardinal Stritch of the Chicago Archdiocese.

There have, however, been articles and studies by Roman Catholic leaders on the assembly's theme. Said an American Catholic publication, The Pilot:

"No true Christian at any rate will look with indifference at the hopes that are set in Evanston."

Whether those hopes find root—and spring into new harvests of harmony—depends on a wide field of uncertainties.

There will be varying shades of interpretation on terminology, the differences of theological emphasis accumulated through long isolation from each other, cultural and national prejudices, and difficulties of language translation.

There will be various perspectives of liberal and conservative churches, of old, dominant churches and young, struggling churches in hostile surroundings, of churches in lands that are free and lands that are not free.

Due to doctrinal differences, all the delegates will not even take part in the same Communion services. But they will pray together, talk together and hope together—to find a truer way.

"Something is going to happen at Evanston this summer," said the Episcopal weekly, The Living Church. "But just what is going to happen is anybody's guess."

World's Christian Churches Nearing Fateful Crossroad

EDITOR'S NOTE — A meeting starting next Sunday in Evanston, Ill., will determine whether centuries-old divisions among Christian religions can be made smaller or must grow still wider. Here is the first of four articles on the Assembly of the World Council of Churches, which some churchmen have called the most important religious event since the Reformation.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Most of the world's churches are moving toward a fateful crossroad. Which way they turn can mean either closer ties or sharper gaps in the centuries-old divisions of Christianity.

The answer hinges on the Assembly of the World Council of Churches opening here next Sunday. "It will be a critical test," said Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, the council's general secretary. "We shall see which is stronger—the force of unity or the force of division."

The meeting will be the most widely representative Christian gathering ever held on the American continent.

In range of subjects, purposes and participation, it may well be the most comprehensive Christian assembly ever called.

All things considered said Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, head of the United Lutheran Church and vice chairman of the council's Central Committee. "It is the most crucial interchurch meeting in Christian history."

Fundamental theological questions, buried through the years in the ashes of denominational cleavages and regional aloofness, will be raised in the first such broad attempt to cement Christianity's scattered forces.

"The assembly will deal with subjects that go to the very heart of the faith," Dr. Fry said. "It is a daring thing to do."

"The outcome can determine the lasting strength of the whole movement to bring the churches closer together and increase their effectiveness."

More than 1,500 representatives from 161 denominations with approximately 170 million members in 48 countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain will take part in the meeting.

Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary and chairman of the council's U.S. study committee, described it this way:

"The most truly ecumenical assemblage of the followers of Christ who have ever met 'in one accord in one place' in the 20 centuries since His life and death and resurrection."

Although the World Council met once previously—at its founding six years ago in Amsterdam—it is digging for the first time into basic and potentially shattering—or consolidating—matters of faith.

Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, the council's American secretary, said he believes that the churches, "instead of finding themselves far apart, will discover that they are on common ground to a far greater extent than they have known."

It is such discoveries, on less ticklish theological matters, that started and spurred on the present-day "ecumenical movement"—to rebuild a firm alliance of the world's Christian churches.

That huge project, reckoning with centuries in which churches have been breaking up and going their hard separate ways, had its tiny beginnings at a missionary conference in 1910 at Edinburgh, Scotland.

It was dreamed, discussed and designed at succeeding meetings of Christian leaders in Stockholm

Coronation's Top Item's Forgotten

BEDFORD, Va. (AP)—The crowning of Miss Mary Babb Venable as queen of Bedford County's bi-centennial celebration went off just fine here yesterday, except for one little thing.

Brig. Gen. William M. Stokes Jr., commander of the 80th Infantry Division, was to have done the honors at the coronation.

At the appointed moment, Stokes arose and looked to an assistant, expecting to be handed the crown.

The assistant looked blank. The master of ceremonies, Charles Green, looked embarrassed.

Sorry, said Green, he had left the crown at home.

The general made like he was placing a crown on Miss Venable's brunette locks, proclaimed her queen, and the 10,000 spectators cheered.

in 1925, in Lauzanne, Switzerland in 1927, at Oxford and Edinburgh in 1937. In 1948 at Amsterdam it culminated in the World Council.

The council does not seek to become a world church, or even to arrange mergers, viewing that as the task of individual denominations.

But it does seek, said Dr. Visser 't Hooft, "to be an instrument of the Holy Spirit for healing our divisions."

Except for the Roman Catholic, nearly every major church will be represented.

Although Roman Catholic churchmen have attended some previous meetings of World Council groups, none will be present at Evanston under a ruling by Samuel Cardinal Stritch of the Chicago Archdiocese.

There have, however, been articles and studies by Roman Catholic leaders on the assembly's theme. Said an American Catholic publication, The Pilot:

"No true Christian at any rate will look with indifference at the hopes that are set in Evanston. Whether those hopes find root—and spring into new harvests of harmony—depends on a wide field of uncertainties."

There will be varying shades of interpretation on terminology, the differences of theological emphasis accumulated through long isolation from each other, cultural and national prejudices, and difficulties of language translation.

There will be various perspectives of liberal and conservative churches, of old, dominant churches and young, struggling churches in hostile surroundings, of churches in lands that are free and lands that are not free.

Due to doctrinal differences, all the delegates will not even take part in the same Communion services. But they will pray together, talk together and hope together—to find a truer way.

"Something is going to happen at Evanston this summer," said the Episcopal weekly, The Living Church. "But just what is going to happen is anybody's guess."

Did Landy Run Mile With Bad Cut On Foot?

VANCOUVER, B. C. (AP)—Did
Landy, Australia's premier miler, run the "Miracle Mile" of the British Empire Games here last Saturday with four stitches holding a deep cut in his right foot closed?

Landy, who ran second to Dr.
Roger Bannister of England in the "Miracle Mile," said last night it wasn't so, that it was "completely thick he could run under those circumstances."

But Dr. Ken Young of the University of British Columbia health service said a member of his staff doctored a "nasty gash" on the sole of Landy's foot Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Joining the "Landy had a bad foot club" were Bannister; Andy O'Brien, sports editor of the Montreal Star; and Jack Sullivan, sports editor for the Canadian Press.

Bannister won the "Miracle Mile" in 3:58.8, some five yards ahead of Landy, who had led most of the way. Landy was timed in 3:59.6.

Today's Query: When Do Bums Start Clicking?

Dodgers Pin Starter Hopes On Podres In Philly Game Tonight

By The Associated Press
New York made its move early.
Milwaukee went into high gear late last month. The question now is: Are the Dodgers ever going to start clicking?

Brooklyn is back with virtually the same team that pulled away from the pack last August and finished 13 games in front. But only rarely this season has it looked anything like the 1953 aggregation.

Even Yanks Can Trample Lowly Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP)—One fan of the Cincinnati Reds mused today that things are getting so bad "the Reds can't even beat the New York Yankees."

The Yanks overcame a six-run deficit in the ninth inning yesterday to trim the Reds 10-9 in the 13th Hall of Fame exhibition game at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Cincinnati errors by Jim Greengrass, who dropped a fly ball with two out, and Ed Bailey, who threw past first base, aided the Yankee rally.

Doubles by Nino Excalera and Wally Post and a triple by Roy McMillan highlighted a five-run uprising by the Reds in the third inning. The Reds added four more in the fourth when Ralph Branca, the Yankee starter, walked in one run and then relief pitcher Harry Perkowski doubled in three more.

Tonight the Cincinnatians start a brief home stand. Chicago is the foe tonight, tomorrow and Thursday. St. Louis comes into Crosley Field for three games, Friday, Saturday night and Sunday. Then the Reds start west.

The Indianapolis Indians of the American Association last night beat the league's All-Stars 3-2, increasing the belief that the only hope of erasing their 15½ game lead is for the Cleveland Indians to requisition all their stars for the American League pennant drive.

Because a couple of his competitors are injured, Dale Atkeson of Lomita, Calif., probably will get his chance to perform at fullback when the Cleveland Browns play an intra-squad game at Massillon next Saturday night. Marion Motley hurt a knee in last Saturday's scrimmage, and Maurice Bassett

NEW YORK (P)—Some old fighters fade gradually. Others show their age in just one fight and then the star is gone.

So far, Archie Moore, the 37½-year-old light heavyweight champon, hasn't shown even the faintest sign that he's on the way down. And that's after 18 years of pro battling and 141 fights.

Harold Johnson, who celebrated his 26th birthday yesterday, hopes old age will catch up with Archie in one sweep Wednesday night when the two collide in a 15-round title scrap at Madison Square Garden.

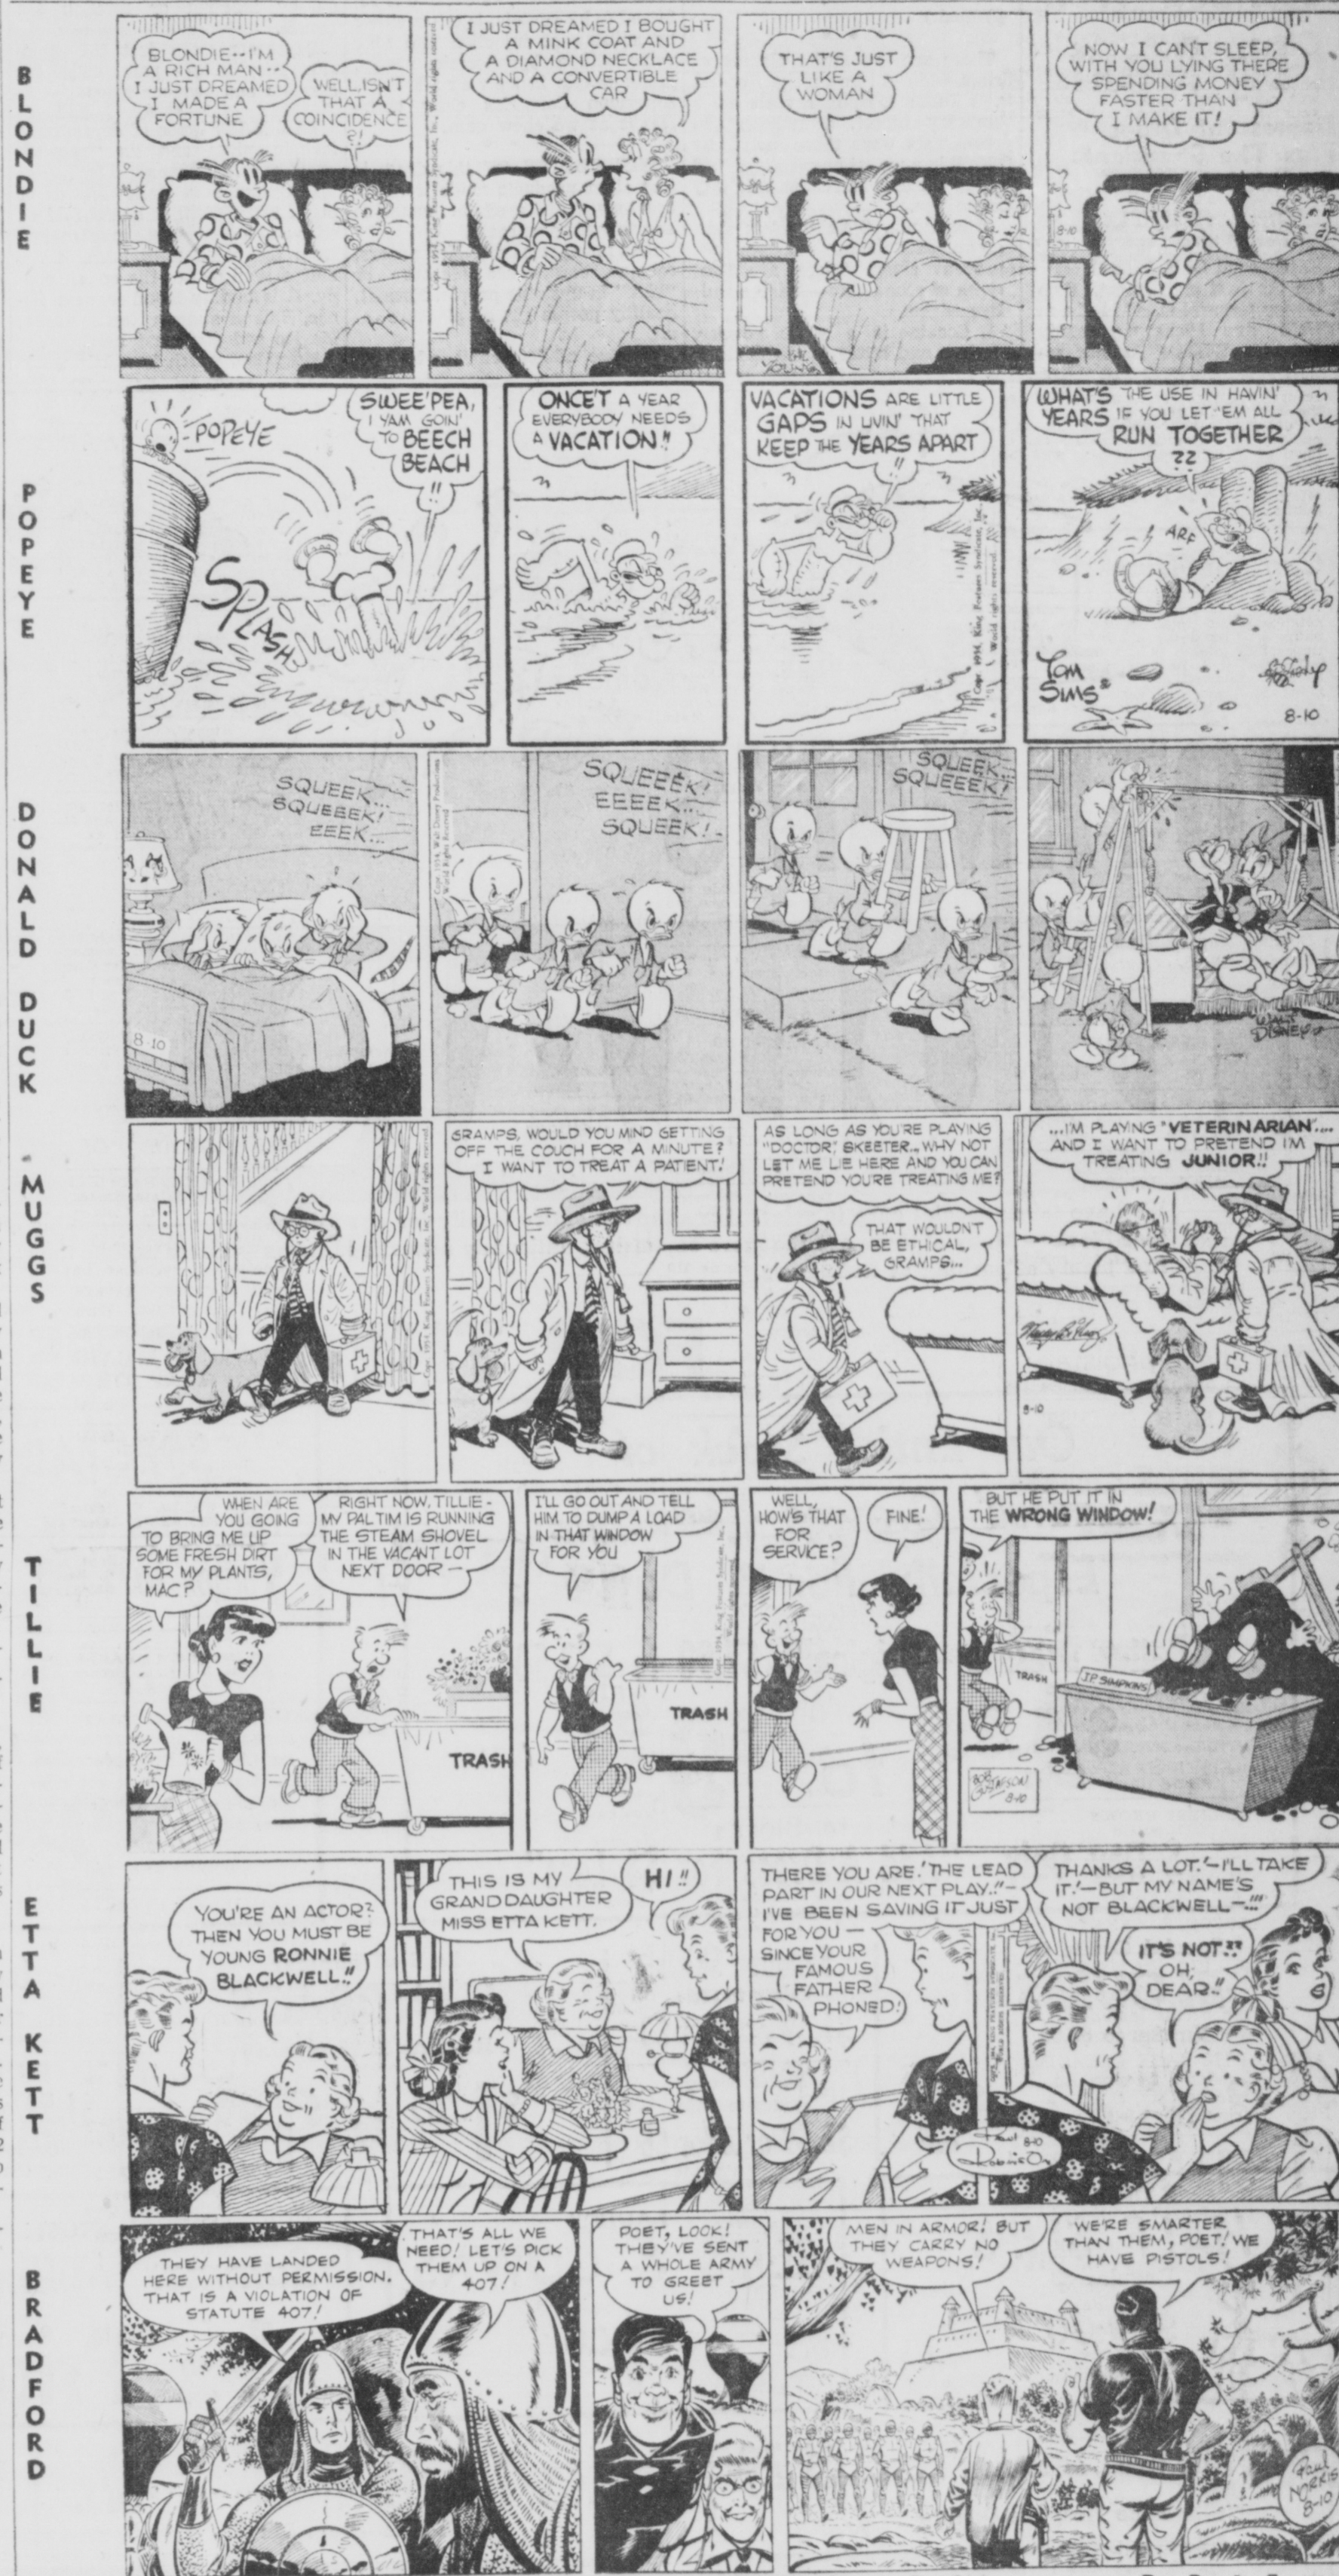

CHICAGO (AP) — International matches, a sort-of attention-holding device bridging the All-American and "World" golf tournaments, begin today at Tam O'Shanter Country Club.

The international competition today pits eight leading foreign professionals against eight Americans in 18 holes of alternate-shot, match-play foursomes.

The same pros tomorrow will wind up the special meet, held for the first time this year, with singles match play.

'Kid Baseball' Players Guests Of Red Birds

Every "Kid Baseball" player in the area has been invited to be the guest of the Columbus Red Birds Wednesday Aug. 18 in Columbus.

Any boy who played in Mosquito, Little or Pony Leagues is eligible to attend the game with the Kansas City Blues.

Should the game be a double-header, all boys are to meet at Ted Lewis Park at 5:30 p. m. If the game is a single contest, the meeting time will be 6 p. m., according to Dick Boyd.

The definite meeting time will be announced later, Boyd explained.

"WITH SUCH a large number of boys to transport," Boyd pointed out, "we will need a lot of help from adults in getting the kids to the game."

"Anyone who can drive a carload of boys should get in touch with me as soon as possible," Boyd added, however, that although the boys will be admitted free the adults who wish to attend will have to pay regular admission.

The Indianapolis Indians of the American Association last night beat the league's All-Stars 3-2, increasing the belief that the only hope of erasing their 15½ game lead is for the Cleveland Indians to requisition all their stars for the American League pennant drive.

Because a couple of his competitors are injured, Dale Atkeson of Long Beach, Calif., probably will get his chance to perform at fullback when the Cleveland Browns play an intra-squad game at Massillon next Saturday night. Marion Motley hurt a knee in last Saturday's scrimmage, and Maurice Bassett

CINCINNATI (P)—One fan of the Cincinnati Reds mused today that things are getting so bad "The Reds can't even beat the New York Yankees."

The Yankees overcame a six-run deficit in the ninth inning yesterday to trim the Reds 10-9 in the 13th Hall of Fame exhibition game at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Cincinnati errors by Jim Greengrass, who dropped a fly ball with two out, and Ed Bailey, who threw past first base, aided the Yankee rally.

Doubles by Nino Escalera and Wally Post and a triple by Roy McMillan highlighted a five-run uprising by the Reds in the third inning. The Reds added four more in the fourth when Ralph Branca, the Yankee starter, walked in one run and then relief pitcher Harry Perkowski doubled in three more.

Tonight the Cincinnatians start a brief home stand. Chicago is the foe tonight, tomorrow and Thursday. St. Louis comes into Crosley Field for three games, Friday, Saturday night and Sunday. Then the Reds start west.

David Baldwin of South Orange, N. J., and Nelson Cullenward, golf writer for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, won medal honors yesterday with one above-par 72s in the qualifying round for the National Left Handers Golf tournament at Dayton. Double elimination rounds begin today.

Duke Snider of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Irv Noren of the New York Yankees continue to hold commanding leads in the major league batting races today, although both slumped last week. Snider tops the National League with a .354 average, 15 points ahead of runner-up Stan Musial of the Cardinals. Noren's .339 is 12 points in front of Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox, his closest pursuer.

Age Creeping Up On Archie Moore?

NEW YORK (P)—Some old fighters fade gradually. Others show their age in just one fight and then the star is gone.

So far, Archie Moore, the 37½-year-old light heavyweight champon, hasn't shown even the faintest sign that he's on the way down. And that's after 18 years of pro battling and 141 fights.

Harold Johnson, who celebrated his 26th birthday yesterday, hopes old age will catch up with Archie in one sweep Wednesday night when the two collide in a 15-round title scrap at Madison Square Garden.

Tam Matches U.S. Foreign Linksmen

CHICAGO (P)—International matches, a sort of attention-holding device bridging the All-American and "World" golf tournaments, begin today at Tam O'Shanter Country Club.

The international competition today pits eight leading foreign professionals against eight Americans in 18 holes of alternate-shot, match-play foursomes.

The same pros tomorrow will wind up the special meet, held for the first time this year, with singles match play.

Narcotics Classified Into Two Major Types And Explained

Drugs' Effects Described Well In Big Report

Depressant Drugs Plus The Stimulants Outlined In Detail

(In the first installment, Ohio Attorney General C. William O'Neill and Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer revealed how the state and Pickaway County may be in the center of future narcotics traffic. In this second installment, various types of narcotics are explained.)

There are two major classes of drugs, Ohio Attorney General C. William O'Neill reveals in a summary report. Stimulants and depressants were those noted by O'Neill in a report on meetings held by the Citizens Narcotics Advisory Committee.

Stimulants, O'Neill points out, create excitement and tend to prevent sleep. There are two types of stimulants—Cocaine and Benzadrine.

1. Cocaine is a white powder, odorless and bitter to the taste. It is made from leaves of cocoa plants, in South American countries, which are harvested two to four times a year.

"C" or "Snow", as cocaine is referred to by addicts, is taken either by sniffing or injection into the veins with a hypodermic needle. Many people in several South American Countries chew cocoa leaves as we chew gum.

THE ODDITY OF this drug is that other products made from cocoa leaves are used in medicine and flavoring extracts.

Sold in capsules or folded papers, cocaine can cause pleasure or "kick" in unstable people. Normal, healthy people get no pleasure at all.

Cocaine addicts can't sleep, have no appetite and are nauseous, to name a few effects of the drug.

2. Benzadrine type drugs are not habit forming and are usually taken by inhaling or through the mouth.

Depressants are just the opposite. They relieve pain, cause relaxation and produce sleep.

THE MAIN types of depressants include opium and its "by-products" and marijuana.

1. Opium is a dark brown or black tarry gum. It has a faint odor and a bitter taste and is taken from the dried milk juice of the unripe seed pod of the opium poppy. It is mainly found in Asia Minor, Balkan states, North Korea, Mexico and southeast Asia.

Morphine, which is widely used to relieve pain, is made by isolating it from opium. It is a fine feathery powder.

Odorless with a bitter taste, morphine is sold as a powder, pill, capsule, cube or in folded papers. Usually, the drug is diluted with milk sugar so that the addict only absorbs three to five per cent. Large doses can produce unconsciousness and death.

Heroin, or "H", is about five times as powerful as morphine. This drug has been illegal since 1925 and is called the "foundation of illicit drug traffic".

ABOUT 50 NATIONS prohibit the manufacture of the white crystalline powder, which resembles morphine. It is sold in capsules or folded papers.

Other members of the opium family include codeine and paregoric.

2. Marijuana, basis for the "reefer" cigarette, comes from a wild growing hemp plant similar to a weed. It can probably be grown in every state in the union.

Hemp fibers are used to make rope, twine and bird feed. However, a resin substance in the flowers and on the leaves is responsible for marijuana.

Although legally used in India, Tunisia and Morocco, the marijuana that comes into the U. S. is smuggled in from Mexico across the Texas border. Marijuana cigarettes cost from 50 cents to $1.00 each.

MARIJUANA does different things to different people. Usually, the willpower is destroyed. Moral teachings are erased. Affected persons do silly and ridiculous things.

A small dose taken by one person may bring about severe intoxication raving fits and criminal assaults. Another person may have no effects but be in a stupefied state.

A great danger in taking marijuana is that the addict becomes dependent upon drugs for pleasure. Later on, in an effort to get more pleasure, the addict might turn to stronger drugs—usually heroin.

(The third and last installment will deal with what has been done and what is being done; the part played by the Citizens Narcotics Advisory Committee; and what happens to addicts.)

Bitten By Dog, He's Quite Pleased

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP)—John Rice of Penrose appeared at the Pueblo dog pound yesterday and asked for a watch dog "that would bite." He explained he was tired of marauders molesting his chickens.

The poundmaster selected a dog and asked Rice to watch him while he went out to unload a truck. When the poundmaster returned, Rice's face and right ear were bleeding.

"That's the dog I want!" said Rice.
